

Longer Lines Ford Feature

Many Points Modernized in Development of Model

Longer lines and more advanced but still conservative streamlining are the chief changes in appearance of the Ford V-8 for 1936, on display at the showrooms of MacKenzie Motor company. Impressive new steel wheels with unusually large hub caps strike an entirely new note.

The front end of the car has been re-designed to give a long hood line. Deeply flared front fenders, each with high inner apron carry smoothly into the new radiator grille. The horn is placed within the fender apron, behind a small chromium grill under the headlamp. Hood louvers are of different profile and are more numerous.

The radiator grille is of new design, sweeping inward about half way down on either side. A new V-8 insignia decorates the nose of the car.

The 12 1/2-inch wheel cap carries the V-8 insignia on its polished center of rustless steel. The rest of the cap is enameled the same color as the wheel itself. Short spokes or ears show for a brief distance between cap and rim. Wheel and rim are of one-piece welded steel. Tires are again 6.00 by 16 inches.

Rear fenders have been re-designed to conform with the longer lines of the car.

Interior is in new color schemes. Deluxe types have the instrument board, moldings and hardware finished in metallic pyroxilin in gray. Plastic knobs are gray. Upholstery fabrics are in dark taupe. The instrument board has a center decorative motif of chromium strips. Instruments—electric fuel gage, electric oil gage, 100-mile speedometer, ammeter and water temperature indicator—are of new design. Steering wheel and gear shift lever ball are gray.

In non-deluxe types the instrument board also is finished in gray metallic pyroxilin. Interior hardware is satin finish. Steering wheel and gear shift lever ball are black.

On all types exterior handles are of rustless steel.

Victims of Truck Mishap Tell Story

Truck after it began to skid and after it turned over.

Fred Sewell, coroner, testified as to what he saw at the accident on July 15 and corroborated measurements taken, as did W. J. Hadfield, state policeman, who also made an investigation.

First eye-witness to the accident called to testify was Clifford Epling, brother of Ralph Epling, victim of the accident and for whose death Oer is being tried.

Epling seemed a reluctant witness and declared he was unable to testify as to the speed of the truck, and was not entirely clear on just what happened when the machine skidded and he was thrown out. Under close questioning by Russell Morgan, district attorney, he finally admitted that he had told Morgan at noon Tuesday that he had estimated the speed of the truck at 30 miles per hour, but qualified this by declaring that he was only making a guess.

Vernon Benge, another occupant of the truck who was thrown from the machine, also was reluctant to testify as to the speed, though he made the statement that he estimated they were traveling between 40 and 60 miles per hour when the accident happened.

He said that he could not remember much of what happened after the truck crossed the bridge. When he woke up, he said, he

Artist's Conception of Capitol Grounds Using Willamette Site

THE NEW OREGON STATE CAPITOL
SITED ON THE WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY CAMPUS, OLD SITE IN FOREGROUND

Landscape experts using an airplane picture of Willamette university here demonstrate how a combination of the old capitol site, present state office buildings and campus would harmonize in the plan recommended by the state planning board to Governor Charles H. Martin. Shown above at the extreme left is the present state office building with the supreme court and state library just above it. In the center foreground is the old capitol site used as a sunken garden with an esplanade from State street, which would remain where it could later be constructed when and if they are needed by the state. Type of capitol, dome or domeless, as well as whether or not the legislature shall have more than 321 by 600 feet of land for its capitol site will be decided at the special session of the state legislature soon to be called for this purpose.

Tell Me Another - - -

(By Ed. Scheidt)

Well, this is a great age we are living in anyhow, even though we holler about the little income and the large outgo. Perhaps if we all would realize that it's only our demands that outwit our purses there might be a chance for our good old Uncle Sam to come back down to earth and an opportunity for all of us to live within our means.

I talked to John Gutschmidt the other day and he gave me some real light on the subject. He said he came to Oregon in the fall of 1933—and immediately got work for 30 cents a day. He said that but that didn't make any difference to him—he didn't quit his job before he started. His wife earned 25 cents a day and that helped, too.

Gutschmidt paid 90 cents to a dollar for four-shocked grain for 25 years. He said he had 30 acres of stump and paid $1 down the first year he raised 25 sacks of potatoes on a half acre, and hauled them to Portland and sold them at 35 cents per sack. Gutschmidt made weekly trips to Portland for 25 years selling all kinds of stuff—sold one lady eggs for 25 cents. (How's that for keeping a customer?) Paid $9 for a pony and $2.50 for a buggy and with that outfit traveled to the big city over roads that knew no rocks but were full of holes—he says he got there and didn't need any gas either and was happy at that!

As time went on he bought 12 acres more and even this year at the advanced age of 73 he still plowed but found it rather hard so he's decided to give up farming. At that he'll bet he was one of the oldest farmers in Oregon.

He claims that if everybody would work like he did for little wages and live within their means times would be different. There wouldn't be so many unemployed. He paid $1 poll tax up to the time it was voted out in this state and put in a day's work on the road.

—He believes in the Townsend plan, as spending more will make more work.—He'd love the Reformed church at Phillips in 1936—used to walk miles for their mail and didn't think anything of it.

When I told him that now days we need more income because of autos, etc., he said, "That darn machinery will ruin us yet!" Perhaps he's right—time will tell!

portunity to grab off the big end of the spoils.

With the democratic majority hopelessly split on the question of the speakership the republican minority stepped into the breach with offers of assistance for a consideration. Earl Hill of Lane county, minority leader, it seems, went into a huddle with the small handful of democrats of the house who refused to play ball with their fellow democrats who had some 21 votes on the dotted line in support of Howard Latourette for speaker. Under the circumstances with the followers of Representative Graham refusing to go into a party caucus to settle on a speaker it became necessary for the Latourette forces to look to some republican support if they were to win—and they did.

Sunday night's caucus at which Latourette was selected for the speakership by a 29-23 vote—one of the wierdest exhibitions of parliamentary maneuvering ever witnessed at a legislative caucus in this state. Just what the republican support cost the Latourette forces may never be known, but the fact remains that in the balloting for desk jobs that night the republicans came away with four of the best jobs in the house bag and several minor plums—a most significant situation in itself and one which becomes all the more significant when it is coupled up with the fact that the republican functionaries were elected by almost the same vote as was the speaker.

Another significant development in connection with the organization of the house on Monday was the unseating of Representative Lev Wallace, a democrat, in spite of the fact that the democrats held a majority of four votes in the violent complaints have been sent to the board from Hillsboro.

Sewers Inadequate Health Board Says

Eventually Hillsboro will face damage suits which will be both costly and inconvenient.

Asked concerning the power of the state board of health, Green pointed out that the Oregon law gives them full power, when once called in on a matter of sanitation, to force correction of the difficulty regardless of the attitude of the residents of that particular section, town or city.

Comparing Hillsboro with other cities in the state of like size as to sanitary measures, Green declared that Hillsboro was far down the list as far as adequate sewers and proper disposal are concerned.

"It looks to me," he said, "as though about two-thirds of Hillsboro is without proper sewers. Your city also has numerous outdoor toilets, and beyond question such things should not be allowed as a matter of health assurance."

To get the most out of ourselves, we must find out what powers we possess and then cultivate and use them.—Ex.
