Provision Unfair

A degree of unfairness is seen in a provision of the social security act for un- change the entire picture to one of prosemployment insurance in that it applies only to employers of eight or more persons. Beginning with 1936 employers of eight or more on each of 20 days in 20 different weeks pay a 1 per cent tax on payrolls. The tax increases 1 per cent each year until it is 3 per cent, where it remains.

This factor it seems to us is going to have the result of holding back employment among those business firms on the border line of eight employes. This very tax might easily be enough to employ an additional person. The employer of seven will hesitate a long time before taking on the additional burden of the tax and the employe's salary.

This provision should include all employers in fairness to those who are do- lines. ing everything within their power to extend employment.

That dread disease, infantile paralysis, is the cause of several fatalities in Klamath Falls and Medford and puts fear in the hearts of all parents. May the time come when medical science will have curbed the inroads of this disease as it has in many other maladies, once thought incurable.

Why not help those faithful Red Cross workers by volunteering your membership intead of waiting for them to come and ask you? This great humanitarian organization needs the hearty co-operation of all.

The Canadian Treaty

A great deal has been said and printed about the reciprocal trade treaty with Canada. The protest most commonly expressed is that the northwest has been sold out to the manufacturing east with reduction in lumber duties from $4 to $2. High standards of wages in this industry here as compared with Canada make protection a necessity.

Probably the truth of the matter is that no one knows just what the effect will be. In regard to the lumber situation a quota of 250,000,000 board feet has been allowed Canada, which is just a little more than half that which was im- of us. ported from Canada in the boom year of 1929, but more than was shipped in during the last four years.

Under this quota set-up we wonder if the result is going to be so disastrous to the lumber industry as some would have us believe? On the other hand it is possible that business stimulation in the manufacturing east may increase the domestic market for lumber and other products of the northwest. A building boom might

In any event we hope and trust that it isn't as bad as it now sounds with protests coming from everywhere.

Enactment of such treaties in secrecy and without opportunity to be heard is the one serious question, which causes the average American to wonder.

Attendance records at the great automobile show in Portland indicate that the public is continuing its interest in the developments in this industry, which is leading this country on the road to recovery. The many improvements in automobiles give most anyone a desire to get behind the wheels of the new cars with their trim

SPIRIT OF TOWNSENDITES LAUDED

· Editor of Argus—Through the courtesy of the Argus I wish to express my appreciation to my many friends in this community, who elected me as a delegate and contributed toward the conven-tion expense fund that made it possible for not only myself, but two others to go to the first na-tional convention of Townsend clubs of America. I also want to give my personal impressions of convention. It is impossible to express all, but I'll give the most prominent ones. First, I was pleased, beyond words to describe, at the class of people who came as delegates to that convention. were the very finest citizens our country affords. When I say that 7000 delegates can meet in convention, without any rowdyism and drunkenness and not even need a sergeant-at-arms, you know the best folk from every community of the nation were there. It was truly a Christian gathering. Second, it was a convention where there was

Third, the delegates went to the convention with one objective in mind, namely, the earliest possi-ble enactment of the Townsend plan into law and they never lost sight of that one objective in any Attend Funeral-

Fourth, the delegates love Christian leader, Dr. F. E. Townsend, founder of the movement, and Earl Clements, co-founder, and when these leaders, so to speak, "laid all their cards on the table" even to inviting their bitterest enemies present their case before the convention and they did not come, it gave every delegate unbounded confidence in them. We are convinced of the utter unselfish motive that spurs our great leaders on.

Fifth, not only were the delegates satisfied with the splendid leadership of the past but pledged loyalty in one ovation after another during the con-

Sixth, with all this confidence still they showed where final voice of authority resides when they overwhelmingly voted down resolutions they considered not good for the cause at large. The au-thority of the local club, which must never be surrendered, was expressed in this action. It is a democratic movement.

In other words this is an unmistakable movement of the people to again have their say in government and let the president and congress ow they represent the people; they are servants of the people and not the people servants for them.
