Poultry Industry Important One at Aloha Community

(By O. B. Bennett) ALOHA-The poultry business is one of the outstanding industries at Aloha. Paul Dudley, one of the first to locate here, came to Aloha in 1918 and is now located on the old Wheeler donation land claim, where he has created an outstanding breeding and scientific plant in the development of the White Leghorn breed of chickens.

As a young man in Missouri he became interested in fancy chickens and the Oregon climate and soil conditions have enabled him to carry out his desires to a satisfactory degree. Dudley started with the original Hanson strain and has paid Mr. Hanson as high as $10 per egg to introduce new blood into his flock. He has and is showing some wonderful blood lines and individuals in his selective operations.

He has about 2000 birds on his farm, uses the Petersime all electric incubator and at the present time has 16,000 eggs hatching marked at hatching time per pedigree degree.
