Historical Inventory of County Planned by WPA

PORTLAND—An inventory of sources of historical information will be included in the Historical Records Survey, a nation-wide project under the Federal Writers' Program of the WPA, was started in Oregon this week, with Mrs. Marie F. Pollock of Forest Grove and Verne Bright of Aloha as field-workers in Washington county.

Washington county, one of the oldest settled areas in Oregon, is rich in historical material. When Portland was merely a settlement, Hillsboro was the center of a far greater district than it is today. One that included in its boundaries what is now western Multnomah county. Since many families who contributed to the making of the Pacific Northwest were residents of Washington county, every effort will be made to collect information concerning historical materials in possession of these pioneers or their descendants, as well as to list materials assembled by historical societies. Another purpose of the survey will be to locate historically important public buildings and private homes of persons prominent when Oregon was in its infancy.

Because a special effort is to be made to unearth old letters, manuscripts and newspapers of historical significance, Alfred Powers, dean of the general extension division of the Oregon state system of higher education and state director of writing under the WPA, urges that anyone in Washington county who possesses or knows the whereabouts of interesting heirlooms, communicate immediately with the Historical Records Survey, Bevell building, Portland, so that Mr. Powers may be able to examine such discoveries with the view of determining their historic value.

ings upon the earth. So be glad—That peace and joy you feel within in you now is the Holy Spirit witnessing with your spirit and telling you that you have become a child of God and so an heir of Christ and a joint heir with Jesus Christ. And this witness within you is a pledge and foretaste, a first installment of blessings to come. On through this life; on through the eternities.

Be glad. Now or more worth to God, you are than the universe itself. "Ye are my riches," he says.

The great God who stands in the midst of the eternities and holds the universe in the hollow of his hand; who speaks and it is done; who is from everlasting to everlasting; the great God has a Father-heart and he wants you for himself, to be his own.

Be glad. All the love you could ever feel for him is but a shadow of his love for you. Forever and forever he has loved you and he paid high to get you. For—Not that we loved God but that he loved us and gave his Son to die for us, to clear us of all guilt.

Be glad. In Christ dwelt the fullness of the Godhead bodily. God in the form of a man; walking on the earth; raising the dead and by many a miracle proving himself to be very God of very God. Be glad. For he stands at the door and knocks. Open and he will come in to stay forever and to add his God-life to yours. You take on God's nature; the Bible calls it the new birth. Just as your human father gave you his human nature, so now the great God gives you his God-nature and becomes your eternal Father.

Be glad. Born again you are now, with new eye-sight, new heart; new powers, hopes, destiny. Yes—a new face, even, and you are of a new order of created beings.
