

Sherwood Folk Give Program

Girl Has Scarlet Fever; Birthdays Observed

LAUREL RIDGE—Sherwood Grange officers and members visited Beaverton Grange at its regular meeting Saturday to present the traveling gavel. Eighteen members from Sherwood attended, as well as several other visitors from throughout the county. Program numbers presented by Sherwood's lecturer, Mrs. Anna Boger, included a vocal solo by Mrs. Agnes Hite, tap dance numbers by three small girls, piano solo by Beatrice Hite, a recitation, "Back in Squashville," and a talk on control of garden pests by L. E. Francis, assistant county agent.

Prizes will be awarded to members of the Sherwood Rod and Gun club for outstanding catches of trout and bass in April, May and June, according to Walt Bowen, president.

Pupils of Laurel Ridge school elected new officers Friday as follows: Harold Cappon, president; Billy Nystrom, vice-president; Delbert Davis, secretary; Ernest Still with the help of Irene Nystrom will publish the school weekly newspaper, "Hilltop Bugle." Hot lunches have been discontinued.

IT PAYS TO REPORT MEASLES
(By Oregon State Board of Health)
Measles has been continually increasing in Oregon and 1936 may develop into a measles year. Measles occurs in cycles varying from three to five years as shown by the following table, the year first, followed by number of cases: 1926, 2141; 1927, 5040; 1928, 2267; 1929, 4347; 1930, 2641; 1931, 2379; 1932, 4988; 1933, 2216; 1934, 1883; 1935, 7179.

Health officers throughout the state know that many cases of measles are not reported. Many parents and even some physicians have questioned the usefulness of reporting each case by name and address. Since the question has been asked the state board of health desires to state the reasons why it believes measles reports are useful.

1. A definite record of measles will save the child whose case has been reported the necessity of being excluded from school when at some future time he is exposed to measles. When a case of measles is reported the patient and all of those contacts who have not had measles are confined at home. Persons who can present definite information that they have had measles will be allowed to attend school providing that the case has been properly recorded with the health department.

2. A case of measles which has been properly reported acquaints the neighbors with this fact and gives them the opportunity of keeping their children who have been exposed away from other children and if they are very young they may be given convalescent measles serum. In short, the reported case of measles gives the neighbors valuable information, which otherwise would probably come too late to be useful, and which may help materially in preventing the spread of the disease to others.

3. The reporting of the cases gives the community as a whole the only information it has on the prevalence of the disease, the districts of the community in which it is most prevalent, the direction in which it is spreading and the fatality of the disease in relation to cases reported. Upon this information rests the decision as to what action shall be taken. Incomplete reporting may lead to erroneous conclusions.

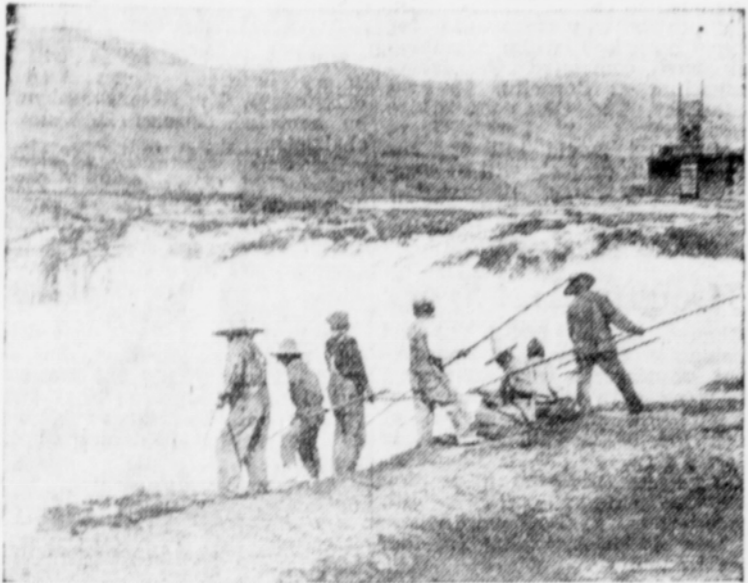

4. The law requires that all suspicious cases be reported by the attending physician, or if no physician is available, by the household or by any other person having knowledge of a case or of a suspicious case.

If there should be a case of measles in your family or in a neighbor's family see that it is promptly reported. Measles is very catching and is much more dangerous than is generally considered. An epidemic of measles in a children's institution may result in a high mortality rate, particularly in poorly nourished children under six years of age. Measles itself does not usually cause death. Death generally results from pneumonia coming on in the course of the disease.

Measles is catching from the very beginning even before the skin breaks out. Every case should be isolated as soon as possible and reported to the health department.

Measles is least serious and most prevalent in children between 6 and 11 years of age. In a modern community 80 per cent of the inhabitants will have had measles by the end of their 15th year of life.

OUT TO SPEAR A WINTER MEAL

Long before the white man came, Indians gathered like these at Cello falls near The Dalles to take the choicest of salmon that means food when winter comes. Travelers along the Columbia River Highway never tire of watching Indians deftly spearing and netting fish when the runs are going up the river. In letters to the Travel and Information department of the Oregon State Highway Commission many 1935 tourists took occasion to say how much the Indians at Cello had intrigued them.

Poses to Cheer Papa Bruno

Contest Winners in Radio Program

An excellent musical number on a carpenter saw. He was accompanied by his brother, Joe.

The missing number was Wilma Schidauer of near Blooming, who was unable to be present. She was to have given a monologue.

Comments among members of the audience after the show, disclosed that all were well pleased with the whole show and the judges, whose names were not made public, declared that the task of determining winning numbers, was difficult in the face of the numerous well presented acts. Judging was by applause, talent, taste in selections presented and appeal to the audience.

Present plans call for another contest to be staged some time in the autumn, date to be set in late summer, members of the committee say. This plan was believed necessary because of the large number of acts seeking places on the contest last week. Enough acts came in late to have made another variety bill nearly as acceptable as the one staged, Jake Weil, chairman said.

The contest was staged for the purpose of assembling Washington county talent and assisting amateurs to obtain recognition both in the county and outside.

Legion contest committee included Jake Weil, chairman, Leon S. Davis, Dr. R. J. Nicol and A. J. Fiecher, assisted by Al Hoffman, James Say, P. L. Patterson, Arthur Kroeger, Morris Weil, R. H. Busch, H. L. MacKenzie, and W. F. Cyrus, post commander.

gives us a queer sort of feeling. Seeing the dollars we have slaved for all our lives just fade out. But that's that when inflation comes to town. And if the good American dollar cannot stand up, then what can?

Well—There is just one value, my friend. Just one that has been able to ride out the centuries. Nations come and nations go but that remains steadfast. And that value is the Lord Jesus Christ; the same yesterday, today and forever.

One—His sinless life. "I find no fault in Him," Pontius Pilate. "I have betrayed the innocent blood," Judas Iscariot. "My Beloved Son in whom I am well pleased."—God, the Father. Two—His blood. "Being justified by His blood we shall be saved from wrath through Him." Three—His atoning death. "Christ died for our sins." Four—His Resurrection. If He were still in the grave, who would believe on Him? But—Up from the grave He arose, with a mighty triumph over His foes." Five—His present life in the heart of His people. For—"The Holy Spirit makes Him personal to the surrendered ones. So real and personal that they are able to say—"It is no longer I that live, but Christ that liveth in me."

"To all who have trusted Him; to those that is, who trust in His name; He has given the privilege of becoming the children of God."—George N. Taylor, Beaverton.—Paid adv.
