Prepare Seed Corn for Sale

Club Members, Leaders Get Ready for Planting

Approximately four tons of Minnesota "13" corn seed was produced last year by 4-H club members enrolled in the Commercial-National bank contest, according to L. E. Francis, assistant county agent. This seed is now being taken to central points where it will be cleaned and graded.

In an effort to place on the market 4-H seed corn a grade of seed which is superior to any other that may be available, corn club leaders and members developed a marketing program under which all of the 4-H seed corn will carry a special 4-H label, will be of a uniform grade, and will have a germination test of 95 per cent or higher.

Recent trials in which local 4-H seed was used along with Idaho seed indicated that the local seed would produce, on a dry weight basis, a tonnage of silage equal to, and quality of silage superior to Idaho seed.

It is hoped that by offering this superior grade of seed there will be an increased use and demand for local seed for both grain and silage production, states Francis. Farmers desiring to secure 4-H seed should look for the special 4-H label.

Local Girls Leave on Southern Trip

A lot. The girls are all so nice and friendly."

Helen Sahfeld: "The girls on board are very nice and friendly, always ready to speak. The arrangements for entertaining are very nice and I'm sure we will all have the best time of our lives."

The Hillsboro girls in answer to a query as to what place on the itinerary interested them most both answered Catalina Island and the glass-bottom boat trip.

Of the 40 girls making the trip, eleven, and some of them from Seattle and other of the larger cities represented on this tour, had never ridden on a railroad train before. Thirty of them had never slept in a sleeper and 23 had never eaten a meal in a dining car. Only four had ever before been in California until the train crossed the border south of Klamath Falls. Only two had ever crossed the southern border of the United States. Most of the girls had taken long trips in automobiles.

Three of the seven Alaska girls had been out of that territory. Every girl who is not now a high school student, reported she was a high school graduate. Six are college students or have attended some university or college.

Most of the girls are working. Five are working as clerks or sales girls. Three list their occupations as bookkeepers, three as stenographers, ten are high school girls, three are not employed and others hold various positions.

They are a western girls, 21 were born in Washington, five in Alaska, five in Oregon, three in Montana, two in the Dakotas, one in Canada, and one in California.

Their average age is 21 years, their average height is five feet two inches and the average weight is just under 130. The lightest girl in weight is given as 95, and the heaviest acknowledged is 150 with two giving their weight at that figure. The shortest girl registers an even five feet and the tallest girl is from Bremerton, who says she is five feet 10 1/2 inches.

Seventeen are classified as blondes, four as strawberry blondes and seventeen as brunettes, while the balance classify themselves as medium.

Automobile Parts Dealers Opening

Announcement was made this week of the opening in Hillsboro Monday of the Hillsboro Auto Parts company by J. H. Fairweather and his son, L. H. "Stormy" Fairweather. The company will be located on North Third avenue at the rear of the Ireland store.

The company will be jobbers of a complete line of automotive replacement parts. Decision to locate in Hillsboro is the result of an investigation which revealed that Hillsboro was the only town of its size in Oregon without a parts house.

"Stormy" was employed for eight years by the Collier Motor Sales company in various capacities and recently operated a confectionery store on South Third avenue. The elder Fairweather was employed as manager for 15 years by the Shell Oil company in Oregon and Washington.
