TO THE BIRTHDAY CLUB

Look! There comes the Birthday Club—Each one carries a box of grub, Friday, the 13th, means nothing to them. They have sneaked away from the men. Just went out to have some fun. Full of mischief, every one. Not looking for any employment—Just a day of real enjoyment. If you find "Ms. Applegate" with idle hands—Her needle is working out "piecing" blues.

Every Birthday, more pep we are losing—And just a bit more tonic using. But every one looks fine and dandy—At kitchen work is very handy. Next month will bring another day—Where we will stage another play. Original poem by Mrs. A. E. Lincoln, who celebrated her 84th birthday anniversary, written in honor of Mesdames Caroline Applegate, Ross Brown and W. V. Herzen, who observed birthday anniversaries this month.
