Dedication of Trees on Sunday

Gesture of international friendship and hope for world peace will be displayed here Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock when the Hon. Ken Tamuro, consul in Portland, will deliver the principal address at the dedication of two Japanese cherry trees at Pilgrim House. The trees were presented to the home by the Iwasaki family. A Japanese flag will also be presented to Christian Council by the children of the Tsugawa family. One of the trees will be dedicated to Japan and the other to the United States, according to plans of Council. Two Buddhist priests of Portland have been invited to participate in the ceremonies, which will be held outdoors if the weather permits. Raymond Lair, president of the Omega Chapter, will preside, and Richard Abbs, Council president, will accept the trees and flag on behalf of the young people's groups. Invitations are being sent by Council to Japanese families in the county, but the dedication exercises will be open to any who are interested, whether they have any connection with Christian Council clubs or not.

Library News (By Mrs. Georgia Smith) Mrs. John Bailey and Mrs. Georgia W. Smith, librarians, attended an all-day district library conference at Forest Grove Wednesday of last week.

The conference was very interesting and beneficial. Miss Harriet Long, state librarian, had charge of the meeting and spoke on "Library Looks to the Future."

Mrs. Clara Churchhill, author of "Slave Wives of Nehalem," spoke at the luncheon. Miss Nichol of the Portland library spoke of Reading for Teen Age. Miss Long also gave a talk on recent books.

These nice warm days make us feel like relaxing in the sun with a good book to occupy our mind. "Faster" by E. M. De-la-field, is a novel of character in which Claudia, the efficient hard-working head of a London business agency, is the central figure. She is a domineering woman who disguises her selfishness and passes as a fair-minded modern who rules life by reason. In reality she is enjoying her self-imposed martyrdom, thwarting her family, and keeping her husband dependent on her. A novel every woman will read and will chuckle over.

"South Riding" by Winifred Holtby. The setting is in Yorkshire and the story revolves around the doings of country council. You can read it for the plot, but it will be more worthwhile to read it as a study of a community.

"Rolling Years" by Agnes Turnbull. A best seller and recommended for Pulitzer Prize. A chronicle of American life, characters depicting village life in Scottish farming community in Western Pennsylvania so vividly that anyone who has known village life will claim these people for his own. Very entertaining.

"Freedom Farewell" by Phyllis Bentley, is a more serious novel, but a historical novel which will appeal to anyone who has studied Latin or Ancient History. It is so entertainingly written that anyone will enjoy it.

"Thinking Reed" by Rebecca West. The scene is in France. A cultivated American widow's life with a wealthy frivolous group is presented with satire and wit. Novel is light, but will appeal to discriminating readers.

There are many more splendid novels on the rental shelf.

MADE FIT TO SERVE "He will bawl me out because I tend bar" was all I could get out of my man until one night he came along. Just as we entered the door, Dr. Scofield was saying—Almighty God took me when I had one foot in a drunkard's grave and lifted me out and he can you too! So the member of early days down in Dallas, Texas, told it. And she went on—"That was the beginning in the end my man came through to the Lord, quit the bar and so we became the happy family that we are."

Now turn back to St. Louis. You see in C. I. Scofield a brilliant

McDonald, primary superintendent, Divine worship at 11. Sermon subject, "The Great Opportunity." Girl Reserves will be guests at this service. Epworth League, 6:30, evening service, 7:45. The Gospel of Mark is the theme of the evening. We welcome you to this service. Good music and a gospel message.—Charles M. Reed, pastor.

So the member of early days down in Dallas, Texas, told it. And she went on—"That was the beginning in the end my man came through to the Lord, quit the bar and so we became the happy family that we are."

Now turn back to St. Louis. You see in C. I. Scofield a brilliant lawyer, hard drinker; youngest man up to his time to be named as a U. S. district attorney and handling big cases for the railroads before the supreme court. His mother died when he was a babe but had committed him to the Lord.

On a day a fellow member of the bar came into his office and faced him with: "Scofield, when are you going to turn your life over to God?"

"Do you mean it?"—and then followed—"Right now."

So the two of them knelt there and when they arose the liquor thing lay uncoiled and dead. Brought up in an old Southern family with liquor always before him, he had become the victim. But the prayers the mother made back there registered with the God of mercy and Scofield came through to his service.

First came calls from the railroad boys up and down the line to speak to them of the new life. Then on a day a summons to quit the big law practice and shepherd a flock in Dallas, Texas. Four men and twelve women at that first service down there, but that night the church was crowded and from then on. You who read know the rest. The gray matter that made judge and jury take note began to bore down and take into the Book of Books and the Scofield of Bible Conference fame had arrived. God had a place for that man and he has a place for you. But his question must be settled first and settled in God's own way—"Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved." Only then can God use you.—George N. Taylor, Beverson.—Paid adv.
