Sewing Instruction Given: Surprise Party Held

(By Mrs. J. C. Smith)

HAZELDALE—Election of officers will be held Friday evening at the Community club meeting.

Free Instruction Possible

Instruction in sewing is given every Wednesday at 12:30 at the Aichon house by Mrs. S. A. Becker under the WPA. This is free to anyone over 16 who is interested.

Surprise Party Given

Mesdames Claude Webber, W. A. Jones and Clarence Walker were hostesses for a surprise shower on Mrs. Harold Shaper April 15 at the home of Mrs. Webber. The gifts were cleverly presented by little Doris Webber. Guests included Mesdames George Altshin, Max Berger, Ida Wiley, Mary McHenry, L. G. Boyd, Fred Boyd, Al Jelderks, George Hinkel, Ray Kincheloe, William Heil, C. P. Sverson, A. Mills, J. C. Smith, W. P. Brooks, A. W. James, Paul O'Connor, P. D. Staub, Chris Murphy, and the guest of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Staub spent the Easter holidays with Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Dwyer of Newberg.

Sam Guerber, who recently sold his home here, left April 15 for Joplin, Mo., to make his home with his daughter, Mrs. Boyd.

T. A. Carey, formerly of here, but who has been making his home at Junction City, Cal., for the last year and a half, is here on an extended visit with relatives and friends. Mr. Cary has been ill for some time.

Play Profitable

"Here Comes Charlie" was presented to a large audience at the Aloha Grange hall Saturday evening. According to comment and reports, the play was a decided success. The two character parts were excellently portrayed by Thelma Davies and C. J. Porter, the teachers at Hazeldale. Others who took part and deserve much credit were Doris Sverson, Margaret Kaupilla, Flavelle Sverson, Oli Kaupilla, Paul O'Connor and Jack Powers.

The play was directed by Mrs. Jean O'Connor and the stage manager was Miss Mary Grand. Dancing to Sappington's orchestra followed. Approximately $30 was cleared.

OBJECTIVES OF MENTAL HYGIENE

(By Oregon State Board of Health)

Medical science has always been irresistibly ambitious. Its chief effort has been to devise means to secure mankind perfectly healthful, efficient working of the stomach, heart and all the other bodily organs. It now turns its attention to the brain and seeks to discover means by which the working mind can be made perfectly healthful. It is comparatively easy to write down the objective of hygiene of the digestive organs, which is to produce as nearly as possible perfect digestion; that is, successful nutrition. The service which man's brain renders to him, however, is not so simply defined. The brain is the organ which enables man to win the continual conflict with his environment. Its real product is behavior. The real objective of mental hygiene is successful living. By successful living we mean that healthiness of mind which will enable a man to preserve his own life and develop his full power of mind and body; to use his sexual functions for their obvious purpose joyously, justly, and without becoming emotionally impeded by morbid repression; and to co-operate with his fellows productively and happily while preserving wholesomeness, independence, and individuality. Outstanding service to his group can to some extent compensate for bad health or sterility.

but unless an individual has lived to a certain minimum level in response to all three of these instinctive requirements, he becomes dissatisfied and emotionally disordered. Nature sidetracks him through nervousness or insanity to get him out of the way of those who can live to better purpose.

The practical efforts of science to secure healthy mindedness for mankind are exhibited in:

1. Efforts to understand and then to prevent insanity.
2. A more hopeful attack upon the problem of mental defectiveness and undeveloped or perverse personality, including criminality.
3. Freeing men from misunderstanding as to religious and moral standards and social values which hamper them emotionally and thereby produce the protean forms of nervousness (psychoneurosis).
4. Education as to marriage and the building of homes as the indispensable basis for the development in children of loyalty, industry, integrity, and all other ingredients of wholesome character. The attitudes which determine character are built up in children in early home life.

The mental hygiene movement began when men realized that the insane person can suffer even more keenly than those who are sane. This clarified truth broke through the consciousness of men and aroused them to action.

The development of general hygiene since the establishment of pathology and the special subdivision bacteriology had aroused new hope in the hearts of men that bodily diseases could be cured, and what is better, could be prevented, if dealt with promptly. Rabies, smallpox, tuberculosis, diphtheria and a long list of diseases once regarded as incurable and hopeless have been brought under control. Statistics show that some of them have almost disappeared in districts populated by intelligent people.

The brain is also an organ, and its activity produces consciousness, feeling, perception and thought. Derangements of the brain and mind are, therefore, within the field of medical science and preventive medicine.—Iowa Health Bulletin.

of the soil depleting base. While the first class payment will be made on not to exceed the 15 per cent and if there is a shift of less than 15 per cent there will be no payment or if the amount is substantial for partial compliance there will be deductions made for the amount that was short, such deductions exceeding the per acre rate allowed for compliance.

There are no applications to sign and no contracts. All that is necessary is for the farmer to fill out the work sheet listing his farm acreage and crop acreage in 1935. Then if and when he believes that he has done something entitling him to either one of these classes of payment, he makes a request for an inspection of his premises and if there has been compliance with the provisions of the program, he is paid.

While many Washington county farmers can not qualify for the larger payment this year because of the failure of red clover last year, this does not mean that he should not fill out a worksheet as it is intended that this will be a two-year program with payments being made in 1937 as well as in 1936, and even though the farm operator may not be able to obtain the larger payment this year, he might be able to do so next year and since filling out the work sheet does not obligate him to do anything and is comparatively simple, it would seem that there is scarcely any reason for not filling one out.

County Seeks Way to Curb Dumping on their haunches and how! their protests to the echoing heavens, but the prostitution of nature's sacred waysides continues.

Arrests, convictions, fines, seem but a temporary expedient for after a week or two, the sacks of junk again mysteriously appear and increase thereafter like flies in a discarded honey jar.

Recently the air about the sacred chambers of the county court has been blue with language calculated to fit the occasion, and the court and commissioners again have set out to abate the situation, which has become serious.

Investigations carried on by the commissioners have revealed that a large portion of the rubbish can be traced to residents of Portland who, heeding the arrival of spring, must needs motor out into the "sticks" to view the beauties of a bountiful nature. Then, having remarked about the quiet and refreshing atmosphere of the rural setting, they leave a reminder of their visit to about a helpless populace that during the winter they enjoyed canned corn, peas, tomatoes and a bottle of "schnoppa."

"If I could get my hands on a couple of these bozos," declared Commissioner Kerkan, "I'd like to push his tin cans down his throat, one by one, and anoint his head with the ashes he left behind him."

Seeking to add zest to the hunt for the curbing of these petty law violators, the county court has called attention to a reward of $3 for information leading to each arrest and conviction. Towns over the county also are being urged to establish regular dumping grounds for accommodation of residents.

"20,000 Grocers Can't be Wrong"

When They Favor Newspaper Advertising

"Circular advertising by individual grocers has proved ineffective. NEWSPAPER ADVERTISEMENTS more readily reach the consumer and COST LESS."
