Portlander Talks to Townsend Club

(By R. L. Putnam)

Clarence Wagener, business man of Portland, and speaker before the local Townsend club Sunday afternoon in the Baptist church, declared the business man could ill afford to not support the Townsend plan. He said that the business men as a class would be benefited more by the enactment of the plan into a national law than anyone else paying regularly every month the $200 pension into the regular channels of trade.

Wagener until quite recently held a federal position in the state treasurer's office, and last year handled thirty millions for relief in Oregon. He has been East recently and contacted some of the leading business and professional men of the country as well as national officials. For one he quoted Senator Norris as saying, "No nation can long survive with ten million idle men."

Continuing to address the business man, Mr. Wagener, declared #### the business man is paying more under the present system than he would be under the Townsend plan.

For instance he says it is costing us $1500 per boy each year to maintain the 500,000 young men in our CCC camps of the country, whereas these young fellows ought to be privileged to marry and be producers, which can be done under the Townsend plan by retiring the older folk from competitive employment.
