Monkey Angry; Pants Torn Off

To much "monkey business" cost O. Coslett his pants and forced him to break an old custom of pants-less men—that of going home in a barrel.

The trouble all began when the Coslett pet monkey, "Joe," who lives in the garage occupied by the Coslett transport truck, became enraged at his owner and attacked him.

Coslett suffered some bites on the leg and the monkey tore off the Coslett covering to the point where his appearance on the street might have caused embarrassment.

Unable to find a barrel suitable for the occasion, Coslett was forced to use one of his trucks for the trip from the garage to his home.

day they might be called to run for public office. But since they are in the plan and are running for public office, it becomes the duty of each Townsend man to carry the march to every voter.

"We are going to be charged by these little picayunish politicians with everything. One man said to me yesterday he wanted to get this kind of a program operating in the Townsend movement. That the state area office would be paid a salary instead of a commission, that they are getting about $3500 a month. I wish you could have seen Jim Logan and me yesterday trying to raise $35 to keep them from taking our telephone from us.

You have 150,000 members in Oregon and the biggest money we ever saw in dollars and cents, including membership dues, literature and every other kind of money was $2600. You are not paying 1 1/2 cents quota. The enemy thinks we are paying 10 cents each.

"The Townsend people are making a sacrifice. Don't listen to what Clements says about Dr. Townsend. You stand by Dr. Townsend and you are standing by the side of one of the finest, cleanest men that God ever gave breath to. That man's house isn't as well appointed as mine. I want the doctor on the witness stand. But they do not want to stand by the side of the man who is my judgment he is telling just what they want him to tell. Each question that is asked is a question that is asked because they already know what the answer is going to be.

"I believe the issue is not an issue between partisans. You will remember that when the republicans were in they promised to have two chickens for each pot. You democrats are in just as bad shape as the republicans for if you have a chicken today you haven't a pot to cook it in.

"We are going to do to these anarchic business conditions of our what they do to sick people. Give it a blood transfusion, and get some circulation.

"The transaction tax I am not going to argue at all. You can see the transactions tax in operation in your post office. Jim Farley, who got his financial education in Tammany Hall and in the prize rings of New York, says he has been able to keep the post office out of the red and if he has been able, 130 millions back of the Townsend plan will open the way for men and women everywhere the world has ever known."

The difficulty of finding a location for the dog house, Chief O. Freeman stated, was that the howling occupants were disturbing the neighborhood slumber and consequently this branch of city business should be conducted in as nearly isolated spot as possible.

Cemetery Clean-up Benefit on May 21

Final ceremonies of the school year, with the announcement of this year's "Sir Galahad" and the winner of "Mary's Rose," conducted annually by clubs affiliated with Hillsboro Christian Council, will be merged with the second benefit dance for the Hillsboro cemetery fund, sponsored by the council, Thursday evening, May 21, at Masonic Temple. The ceremonies will be staged during the dance intermission. Richard Abts, council president, has announced. Tickets will cost 25 cents.

Ballots for voting on selection of recipients of the two honors of the council were distributed this week to all eligible to vote. This includes all members of affiliated clubs, except alumni, high school faculty members, graduating seniors not in the clubs, and the clergy of the high school district. Election is based on "eminence in Christian character." Election of club officers will be held preceding the dance, and of council officers for the new year during intermission.

May activities of the clubs began last Sunday with the annual picnic of Gamma chapter at Avalon park. Picnic committees included Misses Shirley Kelley, Naydeane Patterson and Betty Mayes. An all council picnic is planned for May 17. Annual Mothers' tea will be held next week.

Inclement weather prevented the preliminary clean-up of Hillsboro cemetery planned for last week by the boys' chapters. Weather permitting, that will be done this week-end. Special meeting of council will be held this evening (Thursday) to arrange disposition of cemetery fund.
