Workmen Complete Highway Short Cut

Completion of one project this week and two next week has been reported by K. E. Tillotson, WPA resident engineer. The job completed this week is the Metzger-West Portland road, which connects Metzger with the Fourth street extension.

On this project, a mile of road was reconstructed, widening the right-of-way, moving 7,500 yards of dirt and straightening out the curves. Five acres of brush and stumps were cleared.

Beaverton water mains project, which includes the excavation of all water mains in the city and replacement of the damaged pipe, will be completed next Thursday night.

Another project slated for completion is the Hillsboro city park, where workmen have been busy throughout the winter and spring landscaping, building roads and making other improvements. The work here will also be finished by Thursday night.

Local Girl on World Tour Writes of Visit to Orient

Singapore

Singapore is at the very tip of that long tongue of land lying between the Straits of Malacca and the China Sea known as the Malay Peninsula. It is really an island of a little over two hundred square miles and connected to Johore by a long causeway.

When first occupied by Sir Stamford Raffles in 1819 it was a deserted jungle except for a small fishing village, but in two years the little trading center had a population of 10,000. The island was ceded to the British by the Sultan of Johore in 1824 for $60,000 in cash and a life annuity of $24,000.

The most popular meeting place even now is the old Raffles hotel built by Sir Stamford years ago. Here enjoyed my first real Singapore Sling. The Raffles hotel is known the world over for this drink.

Singapore in recent years has become a very important transportation center for cargo transfers of all ocean-going vessels and most important of all, is becoming one of Great Britain's most important naval bases.

A visit to the Botanical Gardens is particularly interesting. Very amusing, too, are the hundreds of monkeys there. They are not caged, but very contentedly stay in a certain section of these gardens, which are much like their natural habitat. They cut all sorts of antics when tempted by the hands of small native boys and how they love to swing on the strings of the banyan trees.

The orchid collection here is one of the best in the world. Every variety of tree known to the tropics may also be found here.

Some friends of mine in Singapore made possible the unusual privilege of going through the palace of the Sultan of Johore. Up a few years ago it was possible for visitors through acquaintances sometimes to be taken through the palace. However, about two years ago thoughtlessly some visitors from Los Angeles wrote their names on the wall inside, after which practically no one has been allowed to enter.

The City of Johore is about 20 miles from Manila. When we arrived there and presented our letter to the gatekeeper, he fussed around quite a while, telling our hostess no one was allowed to enter. After explaining in huge detail in Malayan she got them to understand the letter gave us permission to enter the palace. He phoned and called the palace headquarters and in his native tongue, which our hostess understood, told them he had a letter from a white man. The letter was taken to the office, verified, and we were allowed to enter.

The trophy room was tremendously interesting and had in it the more intimate interests of the Sultan. Portraits of himself, his family and his friends, along with a great many various sorts of stuffed animals, gold and silver trophies of every conceivable sort and presented by many kinds of peoples.

The banquet hall is easily a block long, with a huge marble staircase leading to balconies on either side. Three or four adjoining rooms hold the gold and silver services. Platters, dozens of them, so large it would take two or four men to carry them in, all of solid gold and silver. Many, many, complete sets—one service in particular I noted of solid gold. I counted enough plates, etc., to serve 144.

Two jewel rooms also were very fascinating—diamonds, rubies, pearls and sapphires as large as hen's eggs, made into innumerable trappings worn only on certain occasions.

The first floor is confined to state affairs only. On the second floor overlooking the Straits of Johore are located all of the living quarters, family reception halls, etc. The bedrooms are most unique. They are on the second floor, but each had a small circular stairway leading to a private bathroom downstairs. I asked one of the men why this was and was told that in olden days all the bath water, etc., had to be carried out so it was more convenient to have it on ground level.

Rubber plantations may be seen everywhere, many of the trees topped and the white milky fluid slowly dripping into small cups which are firmly attached to the tree trunk. The contents of these cups are gathered every morning and taken to the refineries.

Our trip to the native zoo proved rather exciting. We were caught in one of those sudden floods that come after a tropical rain (cloud burst to us). We knew we would be cut off from the city for hours and miss our steamship, so couldn't get across and every minute the water was raising. For almost a mile we went through water at times almost over the running board. All of the picturesque Malay village along this road, where many of the families live a primitive life in their quaint nipa shacks, was miserably flooded.

Singapore, like Hongkong, has been tremendously improved, by the British. I almost resented it in Hongkong, because so much of China had been lost, but truly Singapore, except for the Malay quarter, teeming with life from all Asia and the islands of the sea, is a much cleaner, up-to-date seaport.

At 12 midnight the band plays "God Save the King" and everything closes up. Not one place of amusement is allowed to remain open. For years it had the reputation of being one of the worst ports in the world. All for Singapore—now on to Penang.

Legion Postpones Election to July 14

Election of officers for Hillsboro post, American Legion, was set for July 14 at the meeting Tuesday night. Meeting of June 23 was abandoned because of the county jamboree to be held at Banks that night.

Report of the nominating committee, which included R. J. Nicol, William Dierdorf and P. L. Patterson, was given by Patterson. Further nomination will be taken from the floor on election night.

Nominations included Jake Weil, commander; Arthur Kroeger, first vice-commander; Fred Engeldinger, second vice-commander; Leon S. Davis, adjutant; Russell Tisdale, financial officer; Carl Russell, chaplain; W. Verne McKinney, historian; G. R. Rosecrans, sergeant-at-arms. Executive committee would include Al Hoffman, Al Busch and E. A. Griffith, while William Dierdorf and Ralph Dresser would make up the jamboree committee.

Wednesday night a number of the members assembled at the Veterans' hall for a clean-up of the grounds.

SMALLPOX

(By Oregon State Board of Health)

Smallpox is again making its appearance in this state. This disease usually begins with a few scattered cases. When these occur in unvaccinated communities an epidemic of severe cases may follow at any time. Smallpox affects only persons who are susceptible to the disease. It is readily preventable and does not occur in communities that have been fully vaccinated. Immunity to the disease is acquired after having the disease or through successful vaccination or revaccination. Persons who have not been vaccinated or who have not had the disease are usually susceptible. It is only through the infection of the susceptible individual that the disease gains headway in a community. Man is the source of this infection. Each case is a focus of spread. The contagion is spread by contact and the degree of communicability varies in each epidemic. It is spread not only by mild and missed cases but it is particularly communicable during the early stages before the diagnosis is clear. The control of smallpox cannot be secured through isolation and quarantine alone since its damage is done before the disease can be diagnosed.

Donald E. Long to Place Crown on Lucky Girl

Following the selection, the five winning girls will vote on one of their number as "Goddess," each girl having two votes, one of which she may cast for herself. The one receiving the highest number of votes will be "Goddess" and the other four will be attendants.

Organizers contemplating the nomination of a candidate are urged to select a tall, slender girl most suited to the honor to be awarded.

Age limit for candidates has been lowered to include all girls from 16 to 25 years of age, thus widening the field which is expected to result in a large number of candidates.

Candidates should be registered with Mrs. Morgan as soon as possible, either in the court house or at 234 East Jackson street. Besides Mrs. Morgan the committee includes Marie Hoffman, Emma McKinney, Marion Lytle, Gustie Sigler, E. Fayette Allen, and Elaine Caldwell.

Latest Hillsboro entry to the contest is Authelva Cox, who is being sponsored by the Hillsboro Rebekah lodge.

Parade Big Event Here July Fourth

Between picked junior league teams, a donkey baseball game in the evening and a parachute jump during the afternoon. The usual carnival will be in progress along the midway and the dance will operate during the afternoon and evening.

Baseball fans will have an opportunity to attend two fast games during the celebration. On July 4, Sherwood and Hillsboro teams of eastern Sunset league, will meet in the afternoon while July 3 will find North Plains and Cornelius battling during the afternoon.

July 3, the park will be dedicated and Township clubs from all parts of the district will gather for a picnic. During the afternoon there will be a baseball game between two fast teams with comic donkey baseball in the evening under the new flood lights. Main event of the evening will be the crowning of the lucky candidate for Goddess of Liberty, which will take place at the dance in the auditorium.

Boys' Garden Club Exhibit for Fair

the premium list for the 1936 fair, dates of September 3, 4 and 5. The state appropriation that can be used only for premiums amounts this year to $1,332.00.

Reductions in the premium awards will not affect the display in the 4H club departments as L. E. Francis and O. B. Kraus have both pledged their best efforts to meet these conditions.

A committee from Pomona Grange, R. Hornecker, Oscar Hagg and Charles VanKloek, was present to hear all the discussion and recommended that the granges throughout the county make their exhibits as usual at the fair and accept these reductions.

John Plase, president of the Farmers' Union, stated that he thought the Farmers' Union locals would give their full co-operation. The Coffee club at its meeting in the chamber rooms Tuesday, pledged support to the fair and plans to sponsor some event.
