Grove Man Named as Bee Inspector W. L. Arant of Forest Grove has been appointed by the state department of agriculture at Salem as deputy state bee inspector with Washington county assigned as inspection territory. Regarding the work, Arant says: "The work of the bee inspector is to assist bee-keepers—particularly those who do not make a specialty of the business—to identify and stamp out certain destructive diseases. These diseases are not of the adult bee (it being singularly free from disease) but rather of the unhatched bees, ordinarily known as brood. Anyone suspecting disease in his own or other bees should notify the inspector by mail or telephone. (Address Box 144, Forest Grove, or phone 339M.) Prompt action in dealing with the disease will save other healthy colonies from catching it and prevent considerable economic loss.

"Because a diseased hive is a menace, not only to other bees of the same owner, but also to his neighbors' bees for a mile or more away, the law provides as a protection to all that all bees be registered annually. Blanks for this purpose will be supplied by the inspector as requested, or by the state department of agriculture at Salem. The fee is fifty cents for 10 hives or less; for more than 10 it is five cents per hive. As an offset to this small special assessment, it is pointed out that the property assessment on bees in this county was lowered about the time this law went into effect. The fee is payable to Frank S. McKennon, Salem, Ore.; but the inspector will forward the registration and fee if requested.

Protection is provided to Washington county bee-keepers against importation of disease into the county from other counties or states by a provision of the law making it a misdemeanor to move bees without a permit. These permits are granted only after a rigid inspection in the county of origin. No bees may be moved into the county without a copy of this permit being first sent to the inspector of this county. As this permit is in some cases ignored last season by shippers from California and other places, it is urged that Washington county residents co-operate with the inspector by notifying him of any moving of bees into the county where it is not known that a permit has been issued. The same permit is of course required of residents of this county wishing to move bees to other counties or to other points within the county except in certain cases.

Certain parts of Washington county are apparently free from bee diseases. By co-operation with the inspector these can be kept clear and those sections now suffering can be rendered disease-free by carefully following the program that the state has mapped out for its elimination."

SO HEAVEN DID HEAR "Dear Elmo—Am on the way to Portland with the children."

So the wife and kiddies were coming and Elmo must get a roof for them. Elmo had come in from Idaho three months before; had drifted into a Gospel Mission and there found peace of soul in Christ. From that first day, this quiet, efficient man had lifted his heart in prayer.

"Like so many of the country-bred, he was handy about machinery and in time landed a job in one of the big parking lots down among the high buildings. But with no furniture or needfuls, which way should he turn now? For the family was soon due. That prayer-giant, George Mueller, prayed down millions for his orphanage in Bristol, England. But Mueller also laid it before God when he lost his pocket-knife. All Gods' trusting ones find prayer the very breath of life.

"Who are you talking to?"—one of the other yard men asked Elmo. "He's talking to heaven"—explained another. And they wondered if heaven would hear. So Elmo prayed as he shot the grease and the men about took note. Then during a let-up he slipped into an empty car and made it a holy of holies. Would heaven hear? "That same day came the friend who had first opened the Bible to him.

"Elmo—How would you like to come in with me? And if you bring your family over, there is room for them also. I'm alone in the big place and it is all furnished. And so heaven did hear. Sure—He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with Him also freely give us all things?"—Romans 8:32.

I like to ask elderly preachers what they would do differently if they had their lives to live over again. I am struck with their answers—"I would spend more time
