

Sewer Lines Nearly Half Set in Place

West Side Town to be Ready by August 10

With approximately 40 per cent of the Hillsboro sewer installation completed, Kern & Kibbe, contractors, now are pushing the work to complete the west half of the city by August 10. At that time, according to Sam H. Lind, superintendent in charge, it is expected that all sewers in this district can be placed in operation if wanted.

Met by unexpected difficulties in the south part of town by way of quicksand and groundwater at a depth of 18 feet, digging in that section was abandoned in favor of higher ground in the northwest section where shallower ditches were to be dug.

Only one quicksand pocket was encountered here, that being on West Main street where considerable trouble developed at the sixteen-foot level. However, this has been completed and Tuesday the entire northwest corner of Hillsboro had been finished.

Machines were moved this week to below Baseline street and west of First avenue, where feeder sewer lines are being laid to the main trunk sewer which will be dug down the west side of the railway to the disposal plant. From now on it is expected that work will be speeded up to a maximum of 5,000 feet per week, which pace must be maintained from now on if the contract is to be completed by November 1, Lind declared. A total of 75,000 feet of ditch was in the original estimate.

Last payroll for Kern & Kibbe contained a total of 76 men employed in various capacities. Three digging machines are in operation in addition to a compressor used to break through paving wherever it is necessary to dig ditch along the paved streets.

Chief labor difficulty so far encountered by this company has been to supply efficient pipelayers to set the sewer line in place. Shortage of this type of labor is believed due to the fact that for a number of years, few cities and towns in this state have been installing much sewer line.

Another month probably will witness the completion of the sewage disposal plant in readiness for the government inspection, which precedes the acceptance by the city.

All concrete is now in place with the exception of the walls for the sludge beds. Machinery for the operation of the plant is expected to arrive next week, and finishing touches now are being placed on the various tanks.

Two houses of hollow tile have been erected and workmen this week are finishing them. The first is the blower house which sets astride the tanks, and the other is the laboratory which is being constructed nearer the street, and which will contain the office and chemical equipment used in the control of the sewage plant operation.

Besides the concrete retaining walls on the sludge beds, a crushed rock filter must also be installed through which the water from the sludge will pass before entering the outfall sewer on its way to the river.

New Grand Jury Meets, Trials Set

(Continued from page 1) with soliciting accounts without a license. They were representing a California corporation and were indicted about the first of the year. Trial was before the court, Judge Peters finding them guilty and levying a fine of $100 each. Delmore Lessard, their attorney, indicated that the case would be taken to the supreme court on an appeal.

Arrested Thursday by Portland police, Charles Dotson, 25, formerly employed on a farm near Banks, was brought to the local jail Friday by Sheriff John Connell and Deputy Harry Johnson. Dotson is alleged to have issued several bad checks, including two at Banks, one to the Forest Grove Hardware company and one at Dean's Drug store in Beaverton.

According to Sheriff John Connell,

With Townsendites at National Convention

Gathering 15,000 strong for their second national convention, followers of Dr. Francis E. Townsend, upper left, jammed Cleveland's Public Hall to shout and sing their allegiance to the principles of the Old Age Revolving Pension plan. One of the highlights of the sessions was an address by Father Charles E. Coughlin, right, Detroit priest, in which the leader of the National Union for Social Justice launched a bitter tirade against the Roosevelt and Landon candidacies. The above picture shows the crowd at one of the convention sessions.

Success Due to Advertising Evidence of the power of newspaper advertising to stimulate consumption of every-day necessities, without sacrificing price or quality, is revealed in a report issued by Safeway Stores, Inc., in connection with its recent farmer-consumer dairy products campaign. The drive lasted only one week, from the 15th to the 25th of April, but final compilation of returns from all divisions discloses the fact that in that brief period a combination of strong advertising and economical prices boosted the company's sale of milk, eggs, butter and cheese to an all-time one-week high.

T. Withycombe Buried Tuesday

Brother of Late Governor of Oregon Passes

Thomas Withycombe, 84, well known Washington county farmer a number of years ago and brother of the late James Withycombe, governor of Oregon, died Friday at Good Samaritan hospital in Portland. Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at St. Stephens cathedral in Portland and interment was at Lewis cemetery at Farmington.

He had been conducting religious meetings for the past several years and until recently used offices in downtown Portland buildings. Mr. Withycombe was one of Oregon's early farm leaders. He helped to establish the walnut industry in Oregon and was one of the first to introduce purchased Jersey cattle in this state. His farm near Hillsboro, was known throughout the northwest for its fine herd of Jerseys. Many of that breed on Oregon farms today had their ancestry in the Withycombe herd.

Thomas Withycombe was born April 7, 1852, at Tavistock, England and came to America in 1872. Four years later he returned to England, where he married Catherine Jane Hender July 6, 1876. She died February 17, 1903, and in 1904 Mr. Withycombe married Jane Blair Peters, who survives. The children are Mrs. H. H. Borge and Mrs. T. R. Moore, Hillsboro, and Will and George Withycombe, Gaston. Another daughter, Caroline H. Dickinson, passed away in 1931.

Mr. Withycombe was very proud of his ancestry, tracing his lineage to medieval times, to a long line of Withycombes in England.

nell, Dotson was identified in a police lineup in Portland by men who saw him when the checks were cashed. He is alleged to have used the name, C. Cook, and others in his checking writing.

Saturday morning, W. C. Smith of Portland, WPA worker on the Wilson river road, arrested at Westminster following an argument in a parlor there, plead guilty to assault with a dangerous weapon. Judge R. Frank Peters sentenced him to a year in the county jail.

According to the statement made at the time of sentence by G. Russell Morgan, district attorney, Smith became enraged when he was evicted from the beer parlor, returning with a pair of butcher knives obtained at a nearby house.

With one of these knives he made an attack on the bartender, Dean Thompson. In the fracas which followed, a patron of the place suf-

Alleged Auto Thief Killed

Disaster overtook two alleged car thieves Friday morning at 5 o'clock when the stolen car in which they were driving west, turned over twice after a skid at the intersection of the Bend road and the Tualatin highway, south of Tigard.

One man, believed to be Kenneth Barger, about 24 years old, was taken from the car unconscious and rushed to a Portland hospital, where he is not expected to live, according to state police officer, Walter Hatfield, who has been investigating the accident. The other man disappeared and Oregon police officials are now searching for him.

Barger was supposed to have an address in Oregon City, but a checkup there disclosed that the address was false. The car, a Ford coupe, was reported stolen from a Portland street at about 4 o'clock Friday morning.

Complete identification of Barger still is lacking and state and city police are co-operating in an effort to find out who he really is and where he lived.

Minor cuts and bruises were suffered by Emil Miller of North Plains Thursday night when his truck crashed into an east bound Southern Pacific logging train at Schefflin, northwest of Hillsboro, at 11 p. m. The truck, according to reports struck an empty flat car as the train was passing over the crossing. The truck was carried about 30 feet and the cab crushed, pinning Miller against the side.

Attempting to extricate Miller, and to release the truck, the train men were compelled to back the train which served to warp the cab enough to permit the train crew to release the driver, who was
