gram of sports under the auspices of the local Men's Breakfast club.

After the arrival of businessmen and employees at the fair grounds, John Plass, president of the Farmers' Union, and Fay Mills, master of Pomona Grange, will give brief addresses of welcome. Donald T. Templeton, county judge, and Mayor J. H. Garrett will give the responses.

James Wells, president of the Men's Breakfast club, will act as master of ceremonies, introducing first the members of the fair board, H. T. Hesse, C. D. Minton and R. M. Banks. He also will introduce Judge Templeton, Commissioners Herman Karkman and James Lewis, and Mayor Garrett.

Officials of the various organizations, which have been working toward the success of the fair, will

'Miracle Candidate' Landon Appears Just a Typical American Citizen

NAMING of Alfred Mossman Landon as Republican presidential nominee perhaps appears to be a political miracle. Although now a man of national importance, Governor Landon was little known even in his native Kansas six years ago. That year he lost a race for a precinct chairmanship.

Kansans knew him as an un-spectacular oil man who, operating independently, had made a small fortune by thrift and hard work, and had shown much sagacity in his few ventures into politics. In the most important of these, he managed the successful 1928 race of Republican Clyde M. Reed for the Kansas governorship.

It was after Landon had kept his feet in the Democratic land-slides of 1932 and 1934, to be elected and re-elected governor, that he gained national notice. It was then that metropolitan newspapers hurried writers to Topeka to find out just what sort of person was this man whom the Republicans seemed likely to nominate in 1936.

THE correspondents clicked off reams about his economies, his budget balancing. They also uncovered colorful and humorous incidents in a career which many had thought totally lacking in these two elements.

Among these were: Boyhood—How he talked a recalcitrant hen into laying an egg needed to fill a customer's order.

College—How, as a University of Kansas campus politician, he was known as "Foxy" (Kansas Democrats still refer to him by that sobriquet.) How he had the ice cream course eliminated from his fraternity's menu, and, in turn, presented the lodge with a handsome auditor.

How he drank beer with a sub rosa drinking fraternity, and bet nickels when the Jayhawks played the Missouri Tigers in football. (He still wagers on this game—and still bets nickels.)

Business—How he drilled 14 dry holes in succession before striking oil in his 15th attempt. How he developed wonderful shoves on his blue serge suits before discarding the threadbare articles.

Governorship—How he was extremely vexed when a convict at the state prison obtained an unneeded pair of shoestrings—at the state's expense. How he rode horseback and fished at every opportunity. How he gave important luncheon guests only soup and a light dessert.

THESE stories offer a pretty fair picture of the human side of a man very much in the public eye.

Meet the Republican party's "man of the hour"—Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, in a characteristic photograph taken at Topeka as his star was rising at the Cleveland convention.

Candidate Landon is 48 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighs 170 pounds. He wears rimless glasses and his black hair is graying rapidly. Always extremely friendly, he possesses a smile that is all that could be asked of any candidate.

His wife is charming Theo Cobb Landon of Topeka. There are three children: John Cobb, 2; Nancy Jo, 3, and Peggy Ann, 19. Pretty Kansas U. co-ed, Peggy Ann is the daughter of the first Mrs. Landon, who died in 1913.

On the grounds, the committee has regular broods. The show is sponsored by the Rotary club. Ball games will follow the dog show with competition between leading teams of the county.

Special attention is being given to the dance which opens in the auditorium at 9 o'clock. Admission is to be at a nominal sum, the management has announced.

Promptly at 10 o'clock will come the distribution of $250 in free gifts promoted by the Hillsboro merchants for several weeks previous to the fair. Persons wishing to participate in the gifts must be

Among the more elaborate exhibits in the commercial line will be that of the PEP company which will deal with household appliances. Special wiring is being installed to care for the various pieces to be displayed.

The Portland Gas & Coke company also is making a special effort this year to present an attractive booth.

Others who plan exhibits include Wells Department store, Lester Ireland & Co., C. C. Store, Selfridge Furniture company, The Argus, Imperial Feed & Grain company, Hillsboro Feed company, Pool-Gardner Lumber company, Tom Sholes, automobiles, and Heinrich Brothers, farm machinery.

The entire set of buildings was repainted this year through the co-operation of the county court and the WPA. Two coats of paint have been applied to the outside of the buildings and a WPA crew is busy now completing the painting of the inside with white. This will be the first time that paint has been applied to the inside walls.

With the inside snowy white, less decorations will be necessary this year to produce attractive exhibits, Moore declares, or, if decorations are used, better display will result. Lighting, too, will be easier.

OUT OF THE MISSION ON LOG July 9th—A greatly beloved pastor who has long held his pulpit here in the city, is with us tonight. At the close a wild-eyed fellow came to the front and soon the two were on their knees, the preacher and the drink-slave.

"I cannot say that he was saved, but he surely craved deliverance," said the man of the cloth. So it rests with the great God who knows every sparrow that falls and who answers our prayers and heart-aches.

July 10th—Tonight we have a pastor who had never been with us before. At the altar called a man came forward and accepted Christ as Saviour, and Lord. Encouragement for the long-time pastor last night and for the new man tonight.

July 12th—"Two weeks ago they told me that I may live the year out if I take care of myself. What does it matter? Satan is the payer in this world, but the Lord has a reward for me over there. This from a middle aged man as they one by one rise to testify."

Another on his feet—"I was converted in the penitentiary. I fell away after I got out. But the Lord didn't let go of me. He brought me back. Now I am married; am strong in the Lord's service these many months."

Jo 12th again—"You ought to know me; I was saved in this Mission." It was at the close of the service; we recalled his face and his name.

Then it all came back. A night last winter; a wanderer on the face of the earth, this Kenneth and he had drifted in out of the cold. He found friends in the Mission folks. Then he went out with the Testament we gave him; his name written in it and in the Lamb's Book of Life as well.

Then this Kenneth told of the "tough time"—his words—all these months and of how the Lord had been his comfort and strength through it all.

Yes, boy—you hath he made alive who were dead in trespasses and sins. Kept by his power, you are—George N. Taylor, Beaverton.—Paid adv.

Several Honored Birthday Parties

SHADY BROOK—The birthdays of Fay Mills and his son Pierre were celebrated Friday evening at the family home at Shady Brook. Cards and visiting were enjoyed. Present were Messrs. and Mesdames Alva Logan and children, William Jones, Frank Johnson, Fred Meyers, Frederic Mills and children, Fay Mills and son LeRoy, Alfred Meyers, all of Shady Brook; Julius Schenberger, North Plains; J. B. Kaptur and children, Portland; and Niendas Kies and daughter Hazel, Valle Vista.

A party was given Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Logan in honor of the sixth birthday of their son, Donnie. Children present were Evelyn and Doris Logan, Betty Jean and Melvin Van Domelen, Jerry, Mary Lou and Patsy Ann Mills, Kenneth and Dannie Logan. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. R. Hornecker and son, Alvin of Hillsboro, Mrs. J. L. Van Domelen, Mrs. Frederic Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Alva Logan. The table was decorated with candies and favors for the children.

James Russell and sister, Miss Eva Russell, of Santa Clara, Cal., cousins of Mrs. Fay Mills, were recent guests at the Fay Mills home. Washington Grange won the second Bulletin prize of $5.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson went to Woodburn Sunday to attend the funeral of their uncle, Sam Parker.

DRINK Green Spot Orangeade

Made from Real Juice
Green Spot is scientifically made. The oranges are rushed to the plant, submerged in a sterile solution of water, conveyed to rinsing vats and the juice is extracted in such manner that the PEEL IS NOT GROUND, ROLLED OR PRESSED INTO THE JUICE, and the juice is taken by vacuum into glass lined tanks. The oranges are not touched by human hands after their arrival at GREEN SPOT plants.

Bottled fresh daily.
Available at your fountain or delivered to your home. Accept no substitute.
