

Bakers Return Mountindale

Mrs. R. VanDomelen Guest of Honor at Party

(By Miss Margaret Mathiesen)
MOUNTAINDALE—Mr. and Mrs. Joe Baker and his sisters Johanna and Genevieve Baker of Portland returned home Saturday from a two weeks' trip. While gone they traveled 3000 miles. They went by the way of Tacoma, Seattle and visited friends at Chewelah, Wash., and then went through Spokane into Missouli, Mont., where they visited Mrs. Baker's brother, Francis Crop, who is in the army and is stationed there. From Missouli they went to Butte, where they went down in the Leonard's copper and lead mine. On the way from Butte to Big Timber they encountered a terrible thunder and hail storm which lasted a number of hours, making some of the roads impassable for awhile. Near Big Timber they visited Sherman Fanning who used to live on the Joe Cawse place near here. In that vicinity only the first early crops of hay were harvested and people are living entirely on food purchased from stores. The grasshoppers completely destroyed everything from Big Timber they went to Yellowstone National park and entered it on the Cook City highway, the new entrance into the park. From the park they went to Idaho, where they visited friends at Nampa, Lewiston and NezPerce. Baker formerly lived at NezPerce and after being here 18 years reports that everything is greatly changed from when he lived there. Most all of the people who then owned their own homes have lost them now. After seeing other country while on their trip, Washington county looks by far the best to them.
