Hilhi Eleven Goes to Beaverton Friday Afternoon; Out-plays Rainier 19 to 0

Locals Defeat Rainier Squad

Game Friday First in County Series for Season

(By Ed C. Coman)

Relying on sheer power, Hilhi's gridders rolled relentlessly over Rainier for a lackluster 19-to-0 victory here Friday afternoon in the second home game of the season. Baumgartner, Blue and White, half, scored the first touchdown early in the game with a 19-yard dash over tackle. A pass, Crittenden to Sigler, was good for 26 yards and the second tally midway in the second period, while Wahner picked up the final touchdown near the close of the game, going over from his own 6-inch line.

Hilhi travels to Beaverton for the first game in the county series Friday afternoon and the following Friday will go to McMinnville for a night game on Grizzlies' newly-lighted gridiron.

The Blue and White got off to an early start against Rainier Friday, steadily gaining ground in the punting duel that opened the game. A fumble stopped a first quarter Hilhi drive on Rainier's 22, but a second attack, launched late in the initial period, ended in pay dirt. Quarterback Jack intercepted a pass on the visitor's 35 and raced it back to the 25. Baumgartner and Fullback Ketcham picked up six yards and then, in the first play of the second quarter, Baumgartner raced through a gapping hole inside of tackle to score standing up. Schulmerich's kick was good.

Immediately after the kickoff, Hilhi staged a 62-yard drive for the second score. Two passes, one Ketcham to Sigler and another Crittenden to Sigler, gave the locals a first down on the Rainier 48. Sigler and Ketcham powerhoused the line three times for another first down. Baumgartner made 10 more on two plays and then Crittenden heaved a southpaw pass to Sigler, who romped away to score. Right-End Howell turned in an outstanding piece of blocking to dump the Rainier safety just in time to give Sigler a clear field.

Hilhi made one more scoring threat in the first half, driving to the Rainier 1-yard stripe only to lose the ball on downs. The drive was featured by a 25-yard punt return by Sigler and a spectacular 24-yard pass from Sigler to Howell.

Rainier got a scoring opportunity at the start of the second half, recovering a fumble on the Hilhi 32, but was unable to turn it into a touchdown. Guard Tsugawa on one occasion and End Mohr two other times crashed through to spill the Rainier ball carriers for substantial losses. A desperate fourth down pass on the Hilhi 16 was smeared by Mohr and Himmelright.

The visitors then launched their most dangerous drive of the game. Timoney and James, two slashing, hard-running Rainier backs, started pounding the left side of the Hilhi line, gaining from their own 30 to the local's eight before the attack bogged down. Howell proved the defensive star of this drive, cutting across from the other side of the line to make tackle after tackle from behind.

Wahner, veteran of the 1934 and 1935 Blue and White elevens, was shot into the game near its close and imediately the Hilhi attack began to sparkle. Mohr recovered a Rainier fumble on his own 35. On the third play Wahner passed to Mohr for a 35-yard gain. Mixing his plays with almost faultless precision, Wahner engineered the ball downfield to a first down on the Rainier five. Sigler was stopped inches short of a score and then Wahner crashed over for the final tally. The game ended a few moments later with the ball in Hilhi's possession on the Rainier 39.

Performance of the husky Hilhi line was the feature of the game both on offense and defense. Except for the one Rainier attack in the third period, the forward wall seemed able to stop the visitor's attack at will. On offense the linesmen opened big holes for the Hilhi backs and gave their passers and kicker plenty of time.

Howell was the sparkplug of the game, blocking nicely, making more than his share of tackles and sparkling on pass receiving. Mohr, at the other wing, proved a stubborn player against the third quarter Rainier drive, dumping the visitor's interference and giving Howell a chance to come up from behind. Both men turned in performances creditable to veterans and showed decided improvement on rushing the kicker and passer.

Wahner, veteran back who is now eligible, appears to be the answer to the problem of a capable field general. The play sparked up noticeably as soon as he took command in the final period. He should prove a capable passer, kicker and ball carrier.

Ketcham turned in a steady game at fullback, while Sigler, Crittenden and Baumgartner showed well on off-tackle plays and open field work.

Goodin, Tsugawa and Schulmerich showed plenty of class in the line, while Sutherland's punting and Stout's keystone work were outstanding.

Membership plans already are taking shape with nearly half of the membership already paid for the new year. Membership committee is headed by Arthur Kroeger. 1st vice-president, with H. L. MacKenzie and Dick Busch as assistants. Preliminary plans call for a dawn to dusk membership drive to end the matter of membership for a year.

In connection with Legion membership, Kroeger points out that with the closing of the veterans' state aid, service for men in need of relief or medical attention must be carried on by the Legion.

At the state convention, Kroeger declared, the convention voted to carry on service work with the present service officer in Portland for members of the Legion only, because of the cost when more than 50 per cent of the men seeking help were not members of any veterans' organization.

Havens Fines Pair for Theft of Nuts

Raymond Huber and Frank Huber, brothers, many times losers in courts from Minnesota to Louisiana and Oregon, lost again Tuesday morning in Justice A. W. Havens court when they were found guilty of theft of a sack of filberts from the Ora Garrigus farm, three miles north of Banks.

Justice Havens fined each $100 and ordered them held in jail until the fine is paid. If they serve out the fine they will be in jail 50 days. According to records read by G. Russell Morgan, district attorney, the men both have been in the penitentiary and jails in various places on charges ranging from burglary to car theft and forgery.

Complaint was brought by Mrs. Althea Harmon, housekeeper on the Garrigus farm, who testified that she missed the nuts on the morning of October, and that the sack of nuts recovered from the brothers by Deputy Sheriff Harry Johnson was the same bag taken from the house. Johnson made the arrest Friday.

Arthur Brown and Lowell Ingles, neighbors, both testified that they had seen the Huber car drive into the Garrigus door yard before noon Friday. The brothers live in Portland and were traveling about the county repairing stoves. They declared that they paid a farmer along the road, "somewhere in the county," $2.50 for the nuts. The bag of filberts weighed 41½ pounds.

Raymond Huber conducted the defense for the pair, declaring that as no one really saw them take the sack from the back porch of the Garrigus house, they therefore could not be guilty.

To clinch the case, Lowell Ingles offered to identify the contents of the bag as the Garrigus property, by showing that the bag contained a certain weed which grew in the Garrigus orchard and that there were two kinds of filberts in the bag. The weeds and the two varieties were found.

Deputy Dick Busch testified to an investigation of the theft in which he found a set of tire tracks in the Garrigus driveway corresponding to the tires on the Huber automobile.

Story of Local Man Interests

Julius Christensen Makes Success on Farm

From Iowa cornfields to the forested valley of Washington county in the year 1900 was a long jump, and from that forest to irrigated pasture land in 1936 is a still longer one.

Julius Christensen, who farms some 350 acres of cleared land a few miles south of Hillsboro, near Midway, has made those two moves and today represents a very successful element of farming in the area.

Christensen's story is one of hard work backed by intelligent farming and a record of recognizing and grasping opportunities before him. He operated that way 36 years ago and he is still doing it, with the co-operation of his two sons, Ralph and Harold, who are on the home place.

In Christensen's opinion, there is still room for ambitious farmers in the Washington county area and neighboring counties.

Pointing toward the hill line to the west, he declared, "There is lots of good land there. It takes a fellow who will settle down and work hard for a few years, getting along without some of the luxuries and putting everything he has into his place. I could find plenty of land there that will make a good profit if it is worked right, and it can be bought surprisingly cheap."

Christensen, utilizing some 350 acres of cleared land—most of which he cleared with his own hands—handles a dairy herd of 73 cows and he has enough young stock coming up now to increase his milking herd to 100 cows. To accommodate them, he is completing a substantial addition to his present barn.

He raises corn that reminds him very much of what he did in that respect in Iowa and with that crop and irrigated clover pasture, he reduces his feed cost materially. He now has 18 acres of irrigated pasture and before very long will probably double that. With irrigation, he is able to pasture his 73-cow herd several hours a day in green fields during the peak of the dry season. This was his first year with that system and it has proved wholly satisfactory.

To provide this summer pasture, he dammed the small creek that flows through his place and installed a four-inch centrifugal pump near the bank. During the period of irrigation he wheels a portable five-horsepower electric motor into position, runs a belt to the pump and turns on the juice. The pipeline from the pump connects to a 400-foot concrete line, eight inches in diameter, to the 18 acres. There a Y stretches 700 feet in one direction and 300 in another, flanking the field and providing a downhill flow toward the creek again.

The pump supplies 360 gallons of water a minute to the field. The field is in ladino clover, where the herd is pastured two hours each afternoon in the summer.

Christensen hauls between 17 and 22 cans of milk a day, or usually about 1700 pounds. He expects, soon, with his addition to the herd, to pass the ton-a-day mark regularly.

About a year ago there was installed a milking machine, electric powered by a one-horsepower motor, that effects a great saving in labor.

Christensen's story of how he came into the valley and chose a timbered spot to start his farm is an interesting one. To clear his farm, he engaged in logging, and extended his activities to include logging on nearby land also. Next he needed better roads, so he got busy and built them, and in the end he did considerable road building for the county. So it has been during all the 36 years. When Christensen needs anything, from more land, to better roads, or more and greener pastures, he makes use of the facilities available, applies his energy and ingenuity and fills that need.
