Record Dry Period Ends With Rains

crops, due to the dry summer and lack of fall rains, usually expected to complete the growth of late potatoes.

Monday night, following the rain, heavy fog blanketed the valley, causing trouble at Swan Island airport in Portland. For nearly 15 minutes one of the large transport planes circled Hillsboro, apparently attempting to find a hole to allow a landing on the local airport. The plane later was brought safely to ground at Eugene.

First killing frost this year came November 1 when the temperature dropped to 25 degrees above zero. The following night the mercury reached the lowest point of the month, recording 15 degrees above zero. It is to be followed by A. W. Moore, weather observer here for the biological survey.

During the month of November there have been 11 nights with freezing temperatures, with the highest so far in the month 58 degrees on November 15.

Rainfall during this period has totaled 36 inches with .08 inches recorded on and between the 3rd and 6th of the month, while 16 inches fell November 16 and 12 inches November 17.

Power Shovel Re-enforce the Dikes at Wapato Lake for Winter

One of two power shovels at work on the $75,000 Wapato lake reclamation project near Gaston, where huge dikes have been erected to throw back floodwaters of the Tualatin during the winter. The lake bed is being used to develop one of the largest truck garden enterprises in the west, if not in the United States, releasing to cultivation more than 600 acres of virgin beaverdam land above the greatest single deposit of peat in the United States.—Cut courtesy The Oregonian.

Huge Sum Spent for Dikes on Wapato Lake at Gaston

Preparations are about completed on Wapato lake for the second of a series of battles with flood waters of the Tualatin river which, each year, in the past have swept down the mountains and found lodgment in the lake bed, preventing serious floods of lowlands farther downstream.

Once the lake was a rendezvous for hundreds of wild ducks and was a hunting reserve while in the early days the pioneers found hunting good there and the Indians camped on the shores of the lake.

Other attempts have been made to reclaim the rich soil, but all have failed. The crucial test of the present project probably will come with the first high water above the average.

Portlandian Fired Here Following Accident

W. Williamson, 26, Portland, was fined $100 and sentenced to 30 days in jail Wednesday morning by Justice A. W. Havens when he plead guilty to driving while intoxicated. He was arrested late Tuesday afternoon after his car had crashed into one driven by J. L. Adamson of Aloha. Mrs. Lena Adamson, 61, was slightly injured.

Three persons were injured Monday at West Slope when cars driven by Harvey A. Lockhart of Portland and August C. Hinze of West Lockhart, 23, who suffered broken ribs; Hinze a cut scalp and Miss Hinze a strained back, according to the accident report.

Toward that end, the truck drivers put out a billboard—this year on 400 of the 630 acres produced 200 carloads of potatoes, onions, cauliflower, cabbage, sweet corn, tomatoes, beans and peppers. The ultimate program, so the owners say, will center on the production of onions and celery with some 600 tenant farmers working the land. Toward this end 23 tenant houses, modern with plumbing and electricity, were constructed this year as a beginning of the workers' village, which is to be.

Hope of ultimate production is based on the fact that Wapato lake is virgin beaverdam soil overlaying what probably is the largest deposit of peat in the northwest. Thus is assured an almost unending supply of plant food if handled in a scientific manner.

As time goes on and the soil is placed under complete cultivation and vitalized by drainage and sunshine, production is expected to be tremendous with rich returns to tenants and owners.

The dike is approximately 5½ miles long and the entire job will cost at least $75,000, it is estimated. The earth wall is 13 feet high and surrounded on the outside by a

O. E. S. Chapter Homecoming Tuesday Night

Homecoming meeting, with a pot luck supper, was held at Tualatin chapter O. E. S. Tuesday evening. Mrs. Helen Deichman, charter member of the chapter when instituted 42 years ago, was especially honored, and told members interesting bits about lodge work at that time.

C. E. Wells, past matron of the chapter, read a fine address on Americanism, stressing the need for educating children in religion and patriotism. She also told of her experiences as the first matron of an Eastern Star chapter in Kansas. Miss Esther Wicks played two violin selections, accompanied by Mrs. Fred Sewell.

Mrs. Jean Osborne of Portland, Grand Chaplain, was present at the meeting.

Program presented in the dining room during the pot luck supper included piano selection by Robert and Ann Peters; piano duet by Catherine Enschede and Nancy Aileen Easter; piano solo, Tommy Dinsmore; violin solo, Charles Treglow; recitation by Jessie Plapp; and trumpet solo, Junior Plapp.

MRS. CLARA CARRICK
Mrs. Clara Carrick, wife of Howard Carrick, were held November 7 at Portland Crematorium. Mrs. Carrick died here November 5 at 50. Rose Eastman, Beaverton route 2; Carl Frank, Trashel, Reedville; George Heintz, Garden Home; Catherine Ann Smith, Beaverton route 1; John Parker Rogers, Oregon.

Stray Bullet Upsets School

Fired, apparently, from a point somewhere near the Sagner's school, a stray bullet Thursday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock passed through a window and lodged in the blackboard, narrowly missing Irene Sandeman, 13, pupil who was working at the blackboard at the time. Investigation was made by Sheriff John Connell and deputies.

The bullet, which ranged downward from the window, passed across the space near the desk usually occupied by Mrs. Betty Gretch, teacher, at that time of day. All curtains on that side of the school house were drawn and consequently none could have seen a hunter or other person along the highway or in the fields beyond.

Nine Get Citizenship at Hearing Wednesday
