

Fourteen P.T.A. Groups Meet Here

Fourteen Parent-Teacher associations were represented at the all-day meeting of the Washington county council December 8. The meeting was held in the Congregational church in Hillsboro.

The place of the P.T.A. in the community is the subject of an informal panel discussion. Mr. William Kletzer of Portland, state president, was chairman. The subject was approached from the standpoint of the home, church and school. Mrs. Allen Knight Westmeyer, past president of the county, represented the association. Mrs. Arthur Churchill of Portland, spoke for the home. Dr. J. Bunch of Forest Grove represented the church, and Wade Arstall, principal of Forest Grove grade school, upheld the side of the school.

It was brought out that the function of the P.T.A. was one of information, providing the channels through which all organizations interested in child welfare may work together. Mr. Kletzer stated "There is no other agency that works for child welfare and that alone. This organization may coordinate all other forces in the community toward that end."

Representatives of the local associations announced their membership, which in many cases showed considerable increase. Many groups reported projects such as helping furnish the school cafeteria, serving hot lunches, study groups, sponsoring a traveling library, carrying on the Red Cross, and working for 4-H clubs and driving for a school auditorium.

A proposed change in the county by-laws in regard to dues and delegates was read. The amendment provides that both dues and delegates to the county council be in proportion to membership in the local association. The amendment will be voted on at the February meeting.

The council accepted the invitation from Forest Grove to meet there February 9 for the Founders' day meeting.

To protect those who use public bathing places, the operator should wash all floors, benches, stools, all walls and overhead work with which the feet of bathers come in contact daily with a strong solution of chlorinated lime. Swimming pools are licensed in Oregon and are required to provide foot baths containing a solution of chlorinated soda or lime to protect the bathers from being infected and to pre-

Women to Battle for Extension Work in County

Representative delegation of women from various parts of the country, appeared yesterday (Wednesday), before the county court in a second attempt to keep home extension work alive. The women extension clubs were denied place on the county budget by the budget committee.

The women told the court that unless funds could be raised before January 15, the extension agent in this county would be lost. They also stated to the court that a considerable sum of money could be raised by subscription through farm organizations and others, to help pay for the $900 needed to defray expense of office supplies and travel from one meeting to another and in the organization of clubs for the extension agent.

The women of which there are 200 already in organized clubs in the county communities are planning to keep the work alive until another attempt can be made next year to get recognition on the county budget.

Yesterday the county court assured the delegation that the item would be included in next year's budget, and expressed the opinion that the work was worthy of consideration in this county.

Meanwhile, according to plans, the women plan to build up an organization throughout the country communities to assert their rights to recognition.

This year the work was endorsed by farm organizations and women's clubs over the county including Parent-Teacher associations, all of which were represented on petitions to the court to include the item in the budget.
