Art Says--

William Zurcher of Helvetia had a peculiar experience the other day. One of his heifers took a nose dive in a small lake near his barn. Bill got so excited that he sent an S. O. S. call through the neighborhood for assistance. He got response from all points, but while the help arrived, the bovine cavort-ed playfully in the water and finally crawled out on its own power. Some of the help told Bill that they thought he gave them a bum joke and another heifered about the same time with Durham and said that he must of thought he was the Holstein, and if he ever wanted help again he'd have to ask the udder fellow.
