A time-tried Bank... that has

GROWN UP WITH OREGON

N 1865, when The First National

Bank opened for business in Portland, only blazed trails and crude wagon roads made communication with outlying districts possible. In those days there were less than 30,000 residents in the entire state-there were no electric lights and telephones here then-and it took six weeks for news from Washington, D. C., relayed by telegraph, pony express, boat, to reach Oregon.

During the past 72 years this bank has witnessed the growth of a state that today is nationally known for livestock, grain, dairying, fruit, lumber and other products. Nearly a million people reside in Oregon today. The First National Bank has grown with Oregon. Deposits totaled $257,827 in 1866 (at the close of the bank's first year in business). Today deposits of this bank exceed $88,000,000-and there is a branch of The First National Bank in almost every part of the state.

Growing-up with Oregon has made this bank friendly to Oregon's best interests, confident of Oregon's future. We look forward with you to continued growth and prosperity in this community. We invite you to do business with Oregon's pioneer bank both at our local branch and at other branches which we maintain throughout the state.
