

Turkeys Seen Good Prospect

Market prospects for the new crop of turkeys about to be raised appear more favorable than a year ago, with that for potatoes less favorable, according to a report on the agricultural situation and outlook just released by the O. S. C. agricultural extension service.

It is expected that turkey growers will reduce production, at least somewhat, compared with 1936 when the business was boomed too much, resulting in glutted markets and relatively low prices for turkeys. Feed costs are expected to be lower during the principal fattening period for 1937 crop turkeys than during the 1936 crop season.

Increase Seen

Potato growers on the other hand, apparently intend to increase the acreage of potatoes in response to the very high prices received for the 1936 crop. On the basis of the available information, it seems probable that the acreage will be sufficient to produce about an average amount of potatoes, assuming that growing conditions are normal and yields about average.

With respect to chickens, the report shows that there is some tendency for egg producers to order fewer chicks for raising pullets. Anyway the government report on commercial hatchings and bookings suggests a reduction in pullets raised of perhaps 6 or 7 per cent, depending somewhat on the course of egg prices during the next few weeks.

Much Land Idle

Owing to unfavorable soil and weather conditions last fall, much land in Oregon was not planted to fall crops as usual. An unusual amount of damage was also done to fall seeded crops by the cold weather during the winter. Consequently, farmers in Oregon are confronted with more farm work and spring seeding than usual, and they have had difficulty in getting started, owing to wet soil.

The general level of farm prices in Oregon advanced two points from mid-January to mid-February to 89 per cent of the 1926-30 average. Market prices indicate that the general average did not change greatly from mid-February to mid-March, although some products declined and others advanced. The farm price index figure, 89 compares with 90 in Oregon in February, 1936, and with 90 for the whole country in February this year.

RIP COMES TO TOWN

I'm old Rip Van Winkle and I just woke up. Been asleep a hundred years, they tell me. And such strange sights as I see. The road here in town is all rock instead of mud, and smooth as my old Aunt Eudoxia's platter. I don't see how it ever did come. And up on a post I see a red light and a green, which take turns. Both of 'em shining right out against the sun, which no tallow dip like we had in our day could do. And a bell ringing. Strangest thing of all, there was no one around to make 'em go on and off. A man said they were signals and the crowd did move when they turned. Then along came a big house, bigger than our cabin; just rolling along with a nary an ox or a horse to pull it. Called it a trolley they did.

Yes Rip, you woke up to find us manted with a civilization, so called. A swift flash of feverish thing, all bedecked with time and novelties to please the eye and give each new hour its thrill. In his own good time the great God released the faculty that was in man to invent machines and work up raw material. So civilization came.

Over night we find ourselves in a new order of things with such forces brought into being and already out of hand as promise to blast the whole human race.

And what, in the light of the eternal ages is it all about? Just another test to show what is in man and what man can do when God makes an offer. Will the people choose the old passing show or will they listen to the still small voice? And what says that voice? The voice says that God had a son who died for your sins. Take Him as Saviour and Lord and God will take you as his own. Then you find yourself with a new nature. God crosses it within you. He never takes it away. Even though you mire down, he is true. He sees to it that you come out if he has once given you that new birth. So you come to crave the eternal things and to search, his will to know it and to do it. For all men shall not live by bread alone nor by the passing show, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.—George N. Taylor, Beaverton.—Paid adv.

High Price of Junk Brings Farm Raids

Sale Nash Automobiles Well on Way Toward Goal

Goal of 100,000 Nash car sales for the season is in sight for this company, it was announced this week by J. C. Edwards of the Used Car Exchange, agent for the district. With each month since November exceeding other records, and more than 35,000 Nash and LaFayettes shipped during February, sales records continue to climb, he said.

LENGTHENING OF LIFE

Adult life has been lengthened materially during the past thirty-five years. However, the gain largely has been made in the age bracket below the forty-five year limit. The reason for this lies in the great progress made by medical science in preventing infant mortality. Or to express it otherwise, little folks, on an average will live fifteen or more years longer than was the case prior to 1900. While undoubtedly this is a magnificent achievement, it serves also to indicate that the obligation of the middle-aged and older, to be reasonably concerned about their health and life prospects, still entirely is justified.

The truth is that the increase in deaths from heart, kidney, and blood vessel conditions, not only has been responsible for blocking an extension to the life for the average person who has reached the half-way mark but, from a statistical standpoint, to an extent has neutralized the successful inroads that have been made against tuberculosis and other devastating diseases. And it is right here where present health interest should be more active than it is today.

Faulty living habits perhaps more often are responsible for a prematurely shortened life than is any other single factor. The stepping up of life's tempo and other exacting associated therewith too frequently prove so absorbing and time-consuming that little, if any, thought is given to the real business of life which is to get out of it in terms of health, happiness, and longevity as much as one possibly can.

It follows that many people with definite profit could develop a proper, though not undue, emphasis on the present physical condition and the possibilities to improve it. And the family physician should be the counsellor in this connection. Too often, persons wait until they are ill before taking the doctor into their confidence. And sometimes, it is then too late. Indeed, it should be stressed that sound medical advice on how to keep well, and the early professional detection of an unsuspected condition can mean many added years of usefulness.

In short, the problem of lengthening the life span for the person of forty or beyond largely is one of educating the public to help themselves. Science stands ready to serve. Intelligent personal cooperation unfortunately is not yet geared up to it.

Old, old friend Rastus was in trouble again and the sheriff asked him if he were guilty or not guilty.

"Guilty, sub, I think," replied Rastus, "but I'd better be tried to make sure of it"—Ex.
