MOTHER
 Mother, Oh, what a sacred name! She holds the chief destiny of fame. I, too, hold this sacrificial place—For a tolling mother I am, now With a care-worn brow.

As by the interminate years, did race, I, too, hold this sacrificial place—For a tolling mother I am, now With a care-worn brow.

Never-ending tasks and duty Are lightened by childhood thoughts of beauty. That compels me all the more My own mother to love and adore.

HERD IMPROVEMENT
 Herd improvement work in Washington county is progressing. More interest is being displayed and there are a number of herd owners, who would like to get their herds on test.

Fred Jossy, who has been testing for a number of years, remarked last week that: "Getting into a herd improvement association is generally a profitable thing to do, and more dairymen should be testing."

Membership Full Now
 The present association is full at this time, but with a few more requests for testing it is possible that another association might be organized.

Julius Christensen, president of the local group, in commenting on testing sometime ago said: "Belonging to a herd improvement association is just good business. The tester comes in once a month, weighs the milk, runs the butterfat test, computes the production from each animal in the herd for the month, makes up the herd book, feed costs are entered, and at the end of the year the bookkeeping job, showing exactly where the dairy enterprise stands and the relation of each cow to this business, is complete. It is a valuable service."

High Production Listed
 David Hagg and Sons had the high producing cow for the year, a grade Jersey. She produced 11,662 pounds of milk containing 762.4 pounds of fat.

Members having herds that averaged more than 300 pounds of fat per cow for the year are: C. H. Bamford, Mrs. Tom Williams, David Hagg & Sons, Mrs. C. E. Robertson & Son, John Cordes, Chris Reichen, C. B. Buchanan Jr., John W. Mulloy, L. R. Allen, Mike Yunker, Mrs. I. Vanderzanden, Andrew Vanderzanden, J. H. Busch, Brodgen Acres, Fred H. Jossy, Amos Watkins, O. F. Murphy, Albert Greener, Julius Christensen, Fir Grove Dairy, Arthur W. Connell, Edwin Burkhalter, A. J. Evers, Elmer E. Guerber, A. P. Ireland.

He lived there and was engaged in farming until shortly before his death April 29. Dairy Standards High This County erage of the two low herds is above the average for all associations and is indicative of the high quality of herds in the Washington County association.

Like any other business, the dairy enterprise is operated to produce income. Cyrus points out. Just exactly how much income may be required for an average farm family," said Cyrus, "is a matter of individual opinion, but if it were figured in $1,000 units, it would require 8.7 cows of the kind in the two high herds in the association to produce $1,000 of income over and above feed costs, while it would take 19.4 cows of the kind in the two low herds to produce the same $1,000 of income above feed costs.

Comparisons Made
 "It should be borne in mind that this is above feed costs and not above the total cost of production, feed costs representing approximately 50 per cent of the total. The 8.7 cows in the high group required to produce the stated gross income would place on the market approximately 4300 pounds of butterfat, while the 19.4 cows in the lower group would place on the market approximately 6100 pounds of fat. Thus, 1930 pounds more fat had to go on the market from the lower producers, yet the income was no greater."

Hill Production Pledges
 The Philoxian society formally initiated the pledges April 28. After a dinner in the cafeteria, the pledges were escorted around town in night gowns, stocking caps and candles, to the amusement (and amusement) of the people up town.
