Rotenone Used to Kill Beetles Former Club

This is the time of the year when gardeners first note shiny black flea beetles on tomato plants and other garden crops. Rotenone dust has proven effective in combating this insect, says County Agent W. F. Cyrus. This isn't the only effective material, but it has proven especially good and those who have used it express a preference for it. In controlling flea beetles it is necessary to keep a protective covering of the dust over the young plants until they are well along in growth. This will mean repeated applications of some repellent or insecticidal material.

Rotenone dust comes ready to use. It is not mixed with anything. One-half of one per cent is the strength generally recommended for most purposes and this material has proven especially effective in control of spittle bug or straw-berries. In 1936 its use on potato-tubers against the flea beetle proved its effectiveness. Several farmers in the county used it on young turnip seedlings. Also it is good to keep flea beetles off young kale plants. In this case dusting should begin as soon as the young plants get through the ground and it may need to be continued even once or twice after they are transplanted in the field.

Calcium arsenate and hydrated lime is another material that has been used for flea beetle control with varying results. If used consistently and started early, it will usually do the job. In using it with hydrated lime it is mixed in the proportion of 30 pounds of calcium arsenate and 70 pounds of hydrated lime.

To vote as to organization and representation.

The vote, announced following this decision, established a local organization for bargaining purposes. This, according to Union officials, never did meet with the approval of the Labor Relations board. Pickets have not been used at the plant since last autumn.

Territory Large
Tuesday morning a check of the situation was made by Sheriff John Connell and deputies, who reported everything peaceful.

Total membership of Glenwood local is 1200 at present and a 100 per cent membership from Stimson's would boost the total to nearly 1500. The local's territory extends south to Carlton; north to Vernonia and along the Tillamook railway to Mayo. Charles H. VanDeren, Consolidated brakeman, is president.
