Take a Worm's-Eye View of it

Underneath... that's where much of the strength of a tractor shows up. You won't see the sturdy angle bracing of a "Caterpillar" unless you get on your knees and look up.
You'll see an ingenious, exclusive bracing design... heavy angle braces that absorb the shocks from rough ground, stumps, rocks.
The braces hold the tracks perfectly and permanently in line but without hampering their up and down movement. That's why "Caterpillars" work rough ground without twist or strain... why they never have the familiar track distortion (toe-in, toe-out) so often seen in tractors of other makes.
You pay for permanent track alignment when you buy any tractor... you get it when you buy a "Caterpillar."
