TVA Plan for the Nation Envisions Ambitious Program of New Deal

OUT of the New Deal's experiment with the TVA in the south has come a presidential proposal for a series of seven identical "authorities" which would control the great river valleys of the nation from coast to coast. Therein lies one of the most ambitious projects of the administration.

Conservation of natural resources, development of navigation, flood control and electric power throughout the country are the chief aims of this program. They are, of course, the vehicle for the President's general power policy which holds "that the waterpower resources of the nation must be protected from private monopoly and used for the benefit of the people."

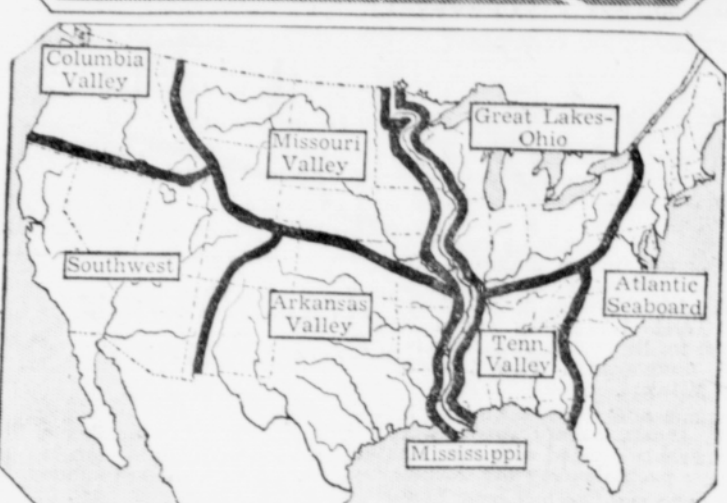

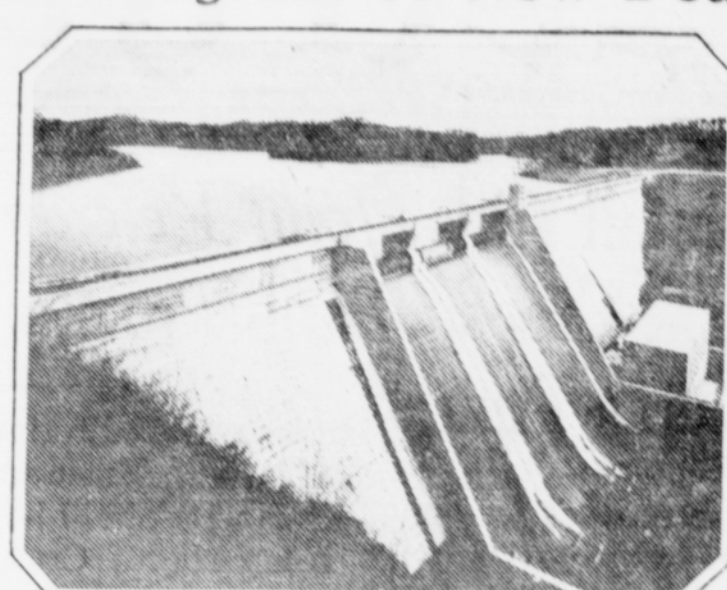

Under bills now before Congress, introduced by Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska, the country would be divided into seven major regions to initiate the program and an eighth, the Mississippi valley, would be administered at present by the Mississippi river commission.

STARTING in the east, this would be the picture, as the map would be divided to attain the aims of the program:

- 1—An Atlantic seaboard authority, covering the drainage basins of all rivers flowing into the Atlantic from the east.
- 2—A Great Lakes-Ohio valley authority.
- 3—The Tennessee valley authority, expanded to cover territory south to the Gulf coast.
- 4—The Missouri valley authority, sweeping far into the west.
- 5—The Arkansas valley authority and down to Rio Grande.
- 6—The Southwest authority for the Great basin and the lower Pacific coast.
- 7—The Columbia valley authority.
- 8—The Mississippi valley authority, dealing with the channel itself.

The time has come, the President points out, "when we must act . . . if we would preserve for ourselves and our posterity the natural resources of a virile national life." Accordingly, he urges the setting up of these regional authorities, suggesting that they first make surveys of the needs of the nation and then formulate definite programs.

Thus, over a long term, the country would arm itself against dust storms, floods, droughts, and at the same time develop navigation and huge power resources across the continent.

IT is this question of power which will doubtless come to the front first in the program. It is the New Deal doctrine that the lowest possible rates to the ultimate consumer, especially to the consumer on the farm and in the home, will give electrical industries the biggest boom in history. At the same time, power companies see in this program a threat to their profits and expansion.

The TVA, of course, is already in the power business. Here will be formulated the yardstick for this type of experiment. And if it works, then the nation may eventually see the plan carried to every state providing present bills are enacted.

The whole picture then, as yet indefinite and extremely flexible as to detail, envisions a nation ultimately secure as to its vast natural resources; a nation which utilizes its power possibilities to the fullest and substitutes long term national planning for past policies.

Business Men Endorse Fair; Offer Support

Washington county fair, September 2, 3 and 4 is being fully endorsed by Hillsboro businessmen. Interviews begun this week reveal the interviews will continue next week.

C. Christensen, Commercial National bank, "We consider the Washington county fair to be a very fine project and worthy of the support of everyone in Washington county. The boys' and girls' 4-H club exhibits are a valuable part of the fair and our children derive a real benefit from it."

R. B. Easter, division manager PEP Co.: "The Washington county fair is one of the best institutions of the Tualatin valley, not only in its support of the 4-H program, but as an advertising medium in building up a truly diversified farm population. It is particularly necessary at this time of new home-seekers to enlarge the fair activities."

Charles E. Wells: "When Hillsboro was favored by the permanent location of the Washington county fair I considered it a recognition and privilege accorded by the farmers and dairymen of this county of which Hillsboro might well be proud, and that Hillsboro's appreciation should be evidenced by active co-operation to make each year's fair a success. I still think so."

Fred Engeldinger, Delta Drug store: "I believe the Washington county fair to be one of the finest public mediums we have. Also the importance and value of the 4-H club feature of the fair cannot be over-estimated."

Bud Phelps, manager Ben Franklin store: "We should wholeheartedly support the Washington county fair, the 4-H and other club enterprises as a tribute to their development of Washington county's farm resources."

Lester Ireland, Lester Ireland & Co.: "The county fair is one of the best mediums to advertise organizations and business enterprises in the county should get back of the Washington county fair, and help put it over each year."

J. H. Garrett, mayor: "The county fair in my opinion is a stimulant to the producer of livestock and vegetables to make an effort to increase the quality and raise the standards. We all appreciate progress."

P. A. Anderson, manager J. C. Penney Co.: "I consider the Washington county fair the most important factor in the development of 4-H club work in the Tualatin valley. This fair affords an opportunity for the rural and city folks to combine their efforts in a project that is of great importance."

George Selfridge, manager Selfridge Furniture company: "The Washington county fair, held in Hillsboro each year, is very important to the 4-H club work as well as the entire county and we are giving it our full support."

Homecoming Set at Mt. Home

(By Mrs. Mable Allison) MOUNTAIN HOME—The twenty-seventh annual homecoming will be held at Mountain Home Evangelical church Sunday. A children's day program will be presented during the forenoon, and the afternoon services will be devoted to the "Oldtimers." A basket dinner will be served in the church dining-room at noon. All interested are invited to bring baskets of lunch and participate.

Chehalis Mountain Potato club met at the Joe Ego home Friday evening and discussed the cutting and planting of potatoes. Raymond Hornbrook gave a detailed report of the sessions and social activity at the 4-H summer school at Corvallis, which closed Friday. Peronice Ego, who also attended the summer school, gave a brief report. Club will meet at the Ray Ego home on July 16.

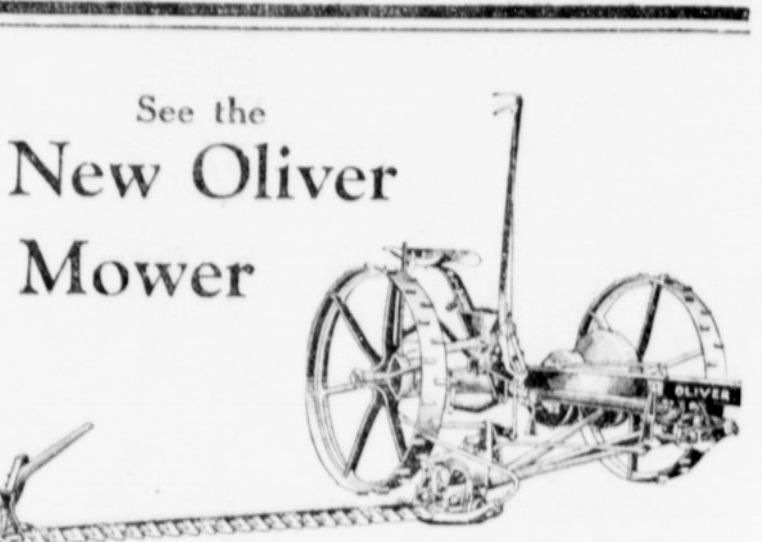

Birthday Celebrated Dinner party guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Allison last Sunday were Miss Maxine Allison, Mrs. Howard Shipley and baby daughter Jean. Robert Steebender, all of Portland; James, George Jr. and Virgil Allison. It was the birthday anniversary of Virgil.

John Schmeltzer went to Monmouth last Friday to bring his daughter, Mrs. Earl Doney, home with him. Mrs. Doney has been attending a short session at Oregon Normal, Miss Helen Schmeltzer, Miss Peronice Ego and Raymond Hornbrook, who attended the 4-H summer school at Corvallis, also returned with Mr. Schmeltzer.

James Allison, who has been attending Oregon State college, and George A. Allison Jr., who attended the 4-H summer school, returned Friday from Corvallis with their father, George A. Allison Sr.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ego entertained members of the Double-Trees class with a "Kid Party" June 11. Games reminiscent of childhood were played in the barn until a late hour, when the "little girls and boys" gathered in the house to partake of refreshments along with the real young generation. This group plans to go to one of the Oregon beaches early in July for a camping trip. Mrs. Mary Boudin had at her house guest last week her daughter, Mrs. Fultz, and daughters of Portland. House guests of Mrs. B. I. Leikas last week were Mrs. Honey and her granddaughters of near Newberg.

See the New Oliver Mower

It's the new Oliver Mower that lets you do the same amount of work easier.

Lifetime gears back of the axle to take weight off the horses' necks, run in a constant bath of oil in a leak-proof, dust-proof housing. Because of the action and running-in-oil principle, the new Oliver pulls a full 10 to 15 per cent easier. The long one-piece axle and the rugged four-square frame are added features. Come in and see the NEW OLIVER. It means as much in mowing as the name OLIVER means in plowing.

Club Groups to Aid Wild Life

Six hundred day-old pheasants, which were secured from the State Game commission by the Washington county court, were distributed to 4-H club members in the county, reports L. E. Francis, assistant county agent. These pheasants will be cared for and raised by the club members and when they have reached the age of 10 or 12 weeks will be turned loose in the community in which they were raised.

Pheasant raising is one of the new projects entered into by 4-H club members and is a very interesting field of activity. Francis points out. Considerable work is being done now in the interests of wild life in Oregon and the pheasant raising project is one phase of the 4-H division in this program.

Club members who have secured pheasants are: Burnard Vandormelen, Donald Bateman, Dick Hickman, Bernard Seus, Keith Bateman, Walter Bateman, Ralph Gillenwater, Donald Crocker, Wilfred James, Bill Crowther, Frank Crowther, Vernon Grant, Lawrence Moran, and G. L. McCutchen.

Cars Kill More Than Wars On Memorial day Oregon joined the nation in mourning her 500,000 sons lost in her wars. But in the last three years automobiles have slain 380,000 (according to the Oregon State Motor association).
