Specialization
Seldom do you see a great swimmer that is a champion boxer, a long distance runner, an expert accountant, a successful salesman, and a sound, practical business man. It's too much to ask of any one man, all at the same time.
But any one man can make a living for several others if he will only excel in any one of these various things.
We have found that the business which makes a specialty of serving its customers to the best of its ability in its particular line is the one that profits most both the owner and the customer.—EX.
