Collapsible Lifeboat Carried by Amelia Earhart

Five Good Reasons

Why Argus Want Ads Bring Results

- 1. 2858 subscribers receive the Hillsboro Argus each week at the present time.
- 2. The Argus covers practically all of Washington County and adjoining portions of the surrounding counties.
- 3. If only four people read each Argus that would make a total of 11,432 readers every week.
- 4. The value of Argus Want Ads has been so thoroughly proven that the Want Ad page has developed into Washington County's most popular and convenient Market Place.
- 5. Our readers depend on the Want Ads to help them in buying the things they want and in selling the things they no longer need.
