

Banks Winner Second Place County League

Second place was decided Sunday in the Washington County Baseball League when the Banks heavy hitters won from Verboort. Verboort took the lead 1 to 0 for a few innings, but the heavy bats of Wickman, Ireland, and Delplanche hammered out hits for three runs scored in the fourth for Banks, after which Banks never was headed.

Sunday at Banks, Roy will meet Banks in the first of a three-game series for the league championship. Labor Day Roy will meet Sauvias island of the Sunset league at Banks in the first game of the fall state tournament.

Banks will travel to Carlton to play that team on the same date. The fall tournament includes all first and second place teams in each league in and around the city of Portland, excluding the state and city leagues.

Cornelius Team Scheduled for Tourney Play

Cornelius baseball team, runner-up in the Tualatin Valley league, will play in the fall tournament, which begins this week among baseball teams in this part of the state, exclusive of Portland.

The team, which Cornelius will meet Sunday afternoon at 2:30 on the Cornelius diamond, was selected at a meeting in Portland Wednesday night, too late for publication in this issue of the Argus. However, the selection will be of a strong aggregation, assuring a good game.

Outcome of the game Sunday determines whether or not the teams continue in the play, losers being eliminated and winning teams matched for the next bracket. In the finals, the teams will play at Vaughn street in Portland.

Cornelius, although in second place in league finals, won from Carlton, the champs, 9 to 3, in the last game of the season. Dierckx, Cornelius hurler, allowed only six hits in this game, dividing them three in the first inning, two in the eighth, and one in the ninth.

Among the sparkling talent wearing Cornelius colors are Chiotti, center field; Cook at second, and Holscher at third, all three young players making an excellent record during the summer. Battery Sunday will be Dierckx and Deaville.

these. Hope Garner, was once a member of the famous "Garner Sisters" act, which played "big-time" in New York and Chicago in the old days of vaudeville. Another of the troupe, Al Adams, is an ex-crown whose parents were both noted circus clowns.

Other members of the group have played in stock, or have traveled with road shows and carnivals. One is an ex-chorus girl, and several have had Hollywood experience.

For the past year the Oregon Federal Theatre project has produced shows mostly in the Portland metropolitan area. Last production by the company was Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew," which was seen by more than 10,000 persons during July and August. The variety which will be brought to Hillsboro has been played only once in Portland.

Car Owner's Costs Reduced

The cost of owning and operating a "family car" is less than half of what it was back in the early part of the century. It is revealed in a comparison of car operating costs made in a report received by the Oregon State Motor association.

DiMaggio, Called Greatest All-Round Star, Looms as Baseball's Dominant Personality

BY IRVING DIX

THEY say of Giuseppe DiMaggio that he is the greatest all-round player in baseball today—

They say of Giuseppe DiMaggio that he is the heir-apparent to Babe Ruth's title of home-run king—

They say—

Yes, they are saying many things about the New York Yankees' phenomenal outfielder, known not as Giuseppe but more familiarly as just plain Joe. And some of the wiser baseball men claim you can't say too much about the 22-year-old San Francisco Italian who as a freshman last year started the American League with his terrific hitting power, tremendous, whip-like throwing arm, smoothness in the field, and natural baseball instinct.

Only in his second year of major league competition, young Joe DiMaggio, silhouetted above as he takes a full swing at the ball, is well on his way to becoming the outstanding personality of the diamond, eclipsing even older stars like Lou Gehrig, left below, and the great Dizzy Dean, right.

Obviously possessing everything needed to make him one of the game's greats, Joe is even better this season.

His hitting especially has improved, and every time he walks up to the plate some pitcher goes through a minor nightmare. Facing DiMaggio is what makes every hurler wish he were a shortstop, a catcher, or even an umpire, but never a pitcher.

GIVE him a curve ball and he'll hit it a country mile. Dish up a fast one and he'll whistle it past your ears in two-note harmony. Possessor of as fine an eye as anyone has seen since little Joe Sewell stood by and looked 'em over, DiMaggio's all-round hitting ability today is rivaled only by that of Ducky Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals.

But most significant of all is his penchant for hitting the ball for four bases. Should he continue at the rate he's traveling, he'll lead the junior circuit in home runs, with a figure of 40 or better for the season. For a second-year man—or anyone, it might be added—that is something of an accomplishment.

How DiMaggio hits as many homers as he does isn't quite understandable in some quarters, when it is pointed out that Joe is really a line-hitter and a right-hander at that. But the fact that he is lofting them over the fences in every park in the league attests to the power that lies in his shoulders and wrists. Although it's hardly possible he'll ever exceed Ruth's home run record, DiMaggio, according to present indications, should become the dominating personality of the diamond.

DiMaggio spells color, the thing that makes the turnstiles click.

LOU GEHRIG may be every bit the ball player young Joe is, but he doesn't quite have that electric spark, the intangible something which DiMaggio embodies. Always overshadowed by Ruth during the Bambino's career with the Yanks, Larruping Lou was the logical man to succeed the Babe in the hearts of the fans, but it is the younger man, coming along at the right time, who takes over the role.

Only one other may lay claim to Joe's obvious position as number one fan-magnet, and that's Dizzy Dean. The Great One, however, is a pitcher, and as such works only every fourth day at best. Then, too, there are a lot of folks who don't care for Dean's general attitude.

But everyone likes Joe. The personable, 200-pound husky is a natural, either on the avenue or in the ball park. The kids on the street or the boys in the dugout will verify that, and there's every indication that DiMaggio will be around 10 or 12 years more.

Scholls' Aid Carnival Proves Success; Irmal Trask Queen

(By Miss Lorraine Demmin)

SCHOLLS—Final returns of the receipts from the Ladies' Aid Saturday held Saturday afternoon and evening at the Groner school grounds have not been received as yet, but the amount cleared is expected to be around $30. A large crowd from both the community and neighboring towns was present and the varied attractions were thronged till late hour.

Miss Irmal Trask, winner of the queen contest, and her princesses, Flora Rueck, Marjorie Johansen, Nadine Bunnell and Virginia Bunnell were a pretty picture on their beautiful flower decorated float, the work of Mr. and Mrs. William Chandler. They were all in formal dress and carried bouquets of mixed flowers.

The parade was led by Ferd Groner on horseback, dressed in old fashioned riding attire, and riding side saddle, a picturesque reminder of olden days. A number of floats were entered, also many pets and a number of clowns. At the carnival grounds the line formed for the judging, and the following received prizes: most unique float, first, Groner school; second, Earl Stretcher; best decorated Junior Women's club; best pet entry, Sammy Grotter and dog, first, and Wilbert McKune and two small pigs, second; largest pet, Shetland pony, John Bernau; smallest pet, Mrs. A. B. Flint; turtles; funniest clown, Edward Trask, as teacher's pet, first, and Henry Hesse, second; Comix float, Potter and Trask.

The Aid wishes to thank the many people who helped the carnival, with service, money and donations of materials, and those who patronized so generously the varied booths.
