Every Gram of NOPCO XX Contains 400 Units of Vitamin D

VITAMINS can now be measured as accurately as protein, fat, or any of the other things hens need. Pennsylvania State College measured the need for laying hens for Vitamin D by a four-year test on NOPCO XX. NOPCO XX fed in recommended amounts meets this need.

For accurate, economical feeding, you must use standardized, reliable ingredients. That's why thousands of poultrymen depend upon NOPCO XX to supply their layers with the Vitamins A and D they need for profit-production. It's safe. It's economical.

Season to Open on Pinballs Tuesday

Open season on pinball machines is promised by G. Russell Morgan, district attorney, on and after September 7. Temporary injunction granted in circuit court last spring, has been dissolved under stipulation by the district attorney, and attorneys for the pinball operators.

Under the stipulation, it was agreed that pinball machines could be operated, providing they were not mechanically equipped for automatic payments. However, the attorneys announced that paying machines would be operated in Beaverton and Gaston, seeking an arrest on which to test the question of municipalities' right to license the machines in the face of county official action.

Cannery Brings Local Mention

Hillsboro broke into big time publicity in the August 14 issue of Colliers in a story entitled, "The Big Freeze"

The article is an account of the rapid growth of quick-frozen foods which tells of the process used and names Hillsboro among the few sections of the nation where frozen-pack is used to supply the markets.

However, the article is several weeks late in designating what "Hillsboro is packing at the moment" by stating that berries are being stored.

Pack of quick-frozen foods in the B. E. Maling plant here, had surpassed the pack of a year ago two weeks ago. The article forecasts increase in frozen foods another year, and a correspondingly unlimited market opening up in the years to come.

form and resume his civilian status.

The men were paid in cash for their 13 days of service, and there was considerable scurrying about after the final formation, the armory clearing in record time as the men left for home, with visions of soft beds and well-loaded supper tables on their minds.

Attached to Batteries "A" and "B" during the picnic battle at the camp, the outfit suffered but one casualty, that being Sergeant Perry Walker, who suffered painful bruises when the trail piece of a 155 mm. gun sideswiped him as the gun crew attempted to move the cannon and one wheel ran down the sides of a shallow hole.

The battle lasted three days, according to accounts, during which time the local men were initiated into the various mysteries of aiming and firing a cannon without ammunition.

Good weather prevailed during the time the battery men were sleeping on the ground, but back in camp rain began falling and the men arose Tuesday morning at 3 a. m. in a damp world. Tents, which were to have been struck and shipped back to Camp Clatsop, were left standing by order of the war department, thus assuring the men of dry beds for the final night.

Tuesday night, the men will return to drill in preparation for the arrival of guns and equipment within the next two months.

struck through rugged country along the canyon of the east fork and over the summit. Four miles of this distance is along the nearly perpendicular walls of the north fork canyon. Here, it is planned, crews will blast throughout the winter to prepare the grade for finishing next summer, if WPA continues to supply labor.

Figures obtained in July disclosed the cost of work in Washington county as $500,000. Figures prepared last winter by WPA estimated that 300 men would be required to work 10 months to complete the road west and east from McNamer's, clearing 62.1 acres of land, moving 210,000 cubic yards of dirt and 89,000 cubic yards of rock.

From McNamer's east to the summit sector, 41 acres must be cleared, and 745,000 cubic yards of excavation, mostly rock, would be required.

For the summit sector, 225 men would be required for 10 months to do 30 acres of clearing and move 210,000 cubic yards of dirt.
