Manning Pioneer Dedicates New Banks-Buxton Power Line Extension

Ceremonies have been devised for launching ships and laying cornerstones, but Washington county claims credit for the first pole-nudging ceremony, staged when work was inaugurated on the Portland General Electric company power line extension from Banks to Buxton.

H. D. Kerkman, county commissioner, and L. Crawford, Manning district pioneer, are one of the original sponsors of the petition for power line extension, used a cross-cut saw in place of the champagne bottles and trowels, traditional in launchings and cornerstone layings. Construction was formally started when the pair cut the first notch for cross-arms in one of the poles to be erected on the $15,000 extension.

More than 100 families will have power available for the first time when the extension is completed about November 1, according to R. R. Easter, Peppo division manager at Hillsboro. The project will open up the largest area yet remaining without electricity in Washington county.

The district to be served by the new extension is one of the most fertile in the Valley. A bumper grain crop has just been harvested in the district. The new Wolf Creek highway to the coast traverses the district.

Build Character FOR OREGON YOUTH

Over 19,000 Oregon boys and girls were in 4-H Club projects last year. Character, not chance, controls the destinies of these heirs-to-Oregon-agriculture who train for "clear heads, loyal hearts, useful hands and better health"

Oregon's prosperity will be safe in the hands of these 4-H club workers. Last year they showed $97,096 profit on projects involving $260,619 worth of livestock and goods. We may well be proud of this "younger generation" now being trained to earn while they learn the most modern methods of farming, livestock raising and homemaking, who early begin the practice of working in cooperation with their neighbors.

Since 1911 when the state-wide 4-H Club movement was inaugurated, some of the most interesting and valued customers of The First National Bank of Portland have been 4-H Club members. These many years of close association with 4-H Club workers have convinced us that membership in this great organization is real character-insurance and a sound foundation upon which to build credit.
