

Homecoming North Plains Lodge Planned

NORTH PLAINS—The Pythian Sisters announce annual home coming night for November 19th and invite all members and former members to be present.

Party November 16
At the card party sponsored by the Pythian Sister last Tuesday evening, Mrs. Mathieson and Loei Hollenback won high honors with Mrs. Alvord and Kyle Reynolds second. Another card party is scheduled for November 16.

Home from Hospital
Julius Schoenberg is convalescing at home. He returned from the hospital Thursday.

Returned to Hospital
Mrs. Fred Robnett of Waldport, was called to the bedside of C. J. Rucker. He has been taken back to the hospital and his condition is not favorable.

Birthday Celebrated
Lois Mays celebrated her eleventh birthday with a family dinner at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Minnie Blake, Monday evening.

Other Action Noted
Meanwhile, other evidences of current union strife were apparent in the county. The proprietor of the Brown Mug diner east of Beaverton reported that a window and neon sign had been broken there as men, said to be sympathizers of the truck drivers' union, laid down a barrage of rocks late Sunday and then drove off before any identification could be made. The proprietor is said to have blamed the attack on the lengthy jurisdictional dispute among beer-truck drivers.

In Portland, C. I. O. sawmill workers picketed eleven carloads of lumber, produced by the Carnation Lumber company of Forest Grove, C. I. O. longshoremen refused to pass the sawmill workers' picket line to load the lumber onto the Weyerhaeuser vessel, the Hegira, which is awaiting cargo at Portland. C. I. O. groups contend the lumber is unfair because a "strike" exists at the Forest Grove mill. The mill has allegedly refused to employ men belonging to the Committee on Industrial Organization labor unions.

A. F. of L. Denies Charge
A. F. of L. sawmill union President William Wedel declared that no strike exists at the Forest Grove plant, since the Carnation company operates under a closed shop agreement with the Forest Grove A. F. of L. sawmill union.

Roscoe Craycraft, one-time resident of Elmonica, near Aloha, and now secretary of the C. I. O. longshoremen, said that a crew of C. I. O. longshoremen would be sent to load the Hegira, but that it was up to them whether or not they passed the picket lines established by the sawmill workers. Ship operators view this as a violation of the September 30 agreement renewal whereby jurisdictional picket lines would not be observed.

Wednesday developments in Portland over the C. I. O. refusal to load Carnation Lumber company products saw the Waterfront Employers' association proceeding with plans to close the port of Portland to all shipping at 8 a. m. this morning unless C. I. O. longshoremen begin loading the disputed lumber on the waiting steamship Hegira.

Divorces Granted
South—Lela vs. Raymond.
Arc—Zada vs. Martin.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

LOOSE PLATES Re-Fitted

Bring your loose-fitting plates to me. Most cases can be corrected.

Work done in my own laboratory in one day.

DR. ABRAMS DENTIST

2nd Floor
N. E. corner 2nd and Main
HILLSBORO

Correction

Through error subscription price of the Hillsboro Argus was listed at $1.50 per year in Washington county in a small ad on page 3, section 1, this issue. This should have read $2 per year in Oregon as the rate was advanced September 15, 1937, and has been in effect since that time. All of the news of your home community together with the merchandising news of value to every resident is available for less than 4c per week.

Union Strife Flares Again

(Continued from page 1)
The picket stationed at the Fairview market was also roughed up by the same crowd Tuesday night. Identification can be made in the case of several of the mob.

"Cruse (of the Highway market) signed an agreement with us three months ago and since then has been supplying Kimmerle with produce, after having displayed a union card for almost three months."—Signed: Thomas B. Lenhart.

"I have never signed an agreement or joined the union," declared Cruse yesterday, in reply to the union president's statement. "However, I did sign with the Independent Merchants' association regarding closing hours, with the understanding that these hours were to be enforced. When they were not, I returned to my former closing hours."

Meanwhile, other evidences of current union strife were apparent in the county. The proprietor of the Brown Mug diner east of Beaverton reported that a window and neon sign had been broken there as men, said to be sympathizers of the truck drivers' union, laid down a barrage of rocks late Sunday and then drove off before any identification could be made. The proprietor is said to have blamed the attack on the lengthy jurisdictional dispute among beer-truck drivers.

In Portland, C. I. O. sawmill workers picketed eleven carloads of lumber, produced by the Carnation Lumber company of Forest Grove, C. I. O. longshoremen refused to pass the sawmill workers' picket line to load the lumber onto the Weyerhaeuser vessel, the Hegira, which is awaiting cargo at Portland. C. I. O. groups contend the lumber is unfair because a "strike" exists at the Forest Grove mill. The mill has allegedly refused to employ men belonging to the Committee on Industrial Organization labor unions.

A. F. of L. Denies Charge
A. F. of L. sawmill union President William Wedel declared that no strike exists at the Forest Grove plant, since the Carnation company operates under a closed shop agreement with the Forest Grove A. F. of L. sawmill union.

Roscoe Craycraft, one-time resident of Elmonica, near Aloha, and now secretary of the C. I. O. longshoremen, said that a crew of C. I. O. longshoremen would be sent to load the Hegira, but that it was up to them whether or not they passed the picket lines established by the sawmill workers. Ship operators view this as a violation of the September 30 agreement renewal whereby jurisdictional picket lines would not be observed.

Wednesday developments in Portland over the C. I. O. refusal to load Carnation Lumber company products saw the Waterfront Employers' association proceeding with plans to close the port of Portland to all shipping at 8 a. m. this morning unless C. I. O. longshoremen begin loading the disputed lumber on the waiting steamship Hegira.

Divorces Granted
South—Lela vs. Raymond.
Arc—Zada vs. Martin.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Use the Want Ads in the Argus. Thousands profit by their use.

Flyers' Club Takes Lease on Airport

The city of Hillsboro has granted a lease on the Hillsboro municipal airport to the Hillsboro Flyers' Club, incorporated, a recently organized non-profit organization whose purpose is to further the cause of aviation in Hillsboro and surrounding territory.

Organizers of the new group include Ed Ball, president and a local licensed flying instructor, Norman Ralston, pilot, and Tom Stanton, a student pilot. They expect to put the airport back on a paying basis to rebuild the present buildings, and to erect several new hangars to provide housing for the numerous planes in this vicinity.

Sunday Shoot Planned
The city's option on the airport expires February 1, 1938, and the club wishes to keep the field from reverting to its original owner by utilizing the $23,400 spent two years ago by the government on airport improvements.

"The only way to promote and get an airport is to get planes on the field and give them a real airport from which to fly. The rest will take care of itself," declared club leaders. The three organizers and 20 other corporation members are putting in their time on this airport project without personal gain, and without financial help from the city. "If this club is to fulfill its purpose of producing an airport worthy of Hillsboro, it must have co-operation from every citizen's leaders."

The first activity on the club's program is a turkey shoot at the airport on the next two Sundays, November 14 and 21, starting at 10 a. m. and continuing until dark. The flying enthusiasts are aided in the shoot by George Fischer, who is donating one of the traps and is helping to secure some of the turkeys.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

ty of the line through the serving of frosted chicken, vegetables and strawberries.

In commenting on the rapid growth of the frosted foods business, Loren L. Martin, northwest sales supervisor, stated that their total volume increased from 373,000 pounds in 1934 to 28 million pounds in 1937. There are 19 Birds-eye plants in the country and the Hillsboro plant accounts for 45 per cent of the total pack, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Dorrance Glenn and Mr. and Mrs. Hayes Bickford attended from here.

Union Opposes New Farm Act

More publicity for butter rather than butter substitutes is to be sought for in the future, according to terms of a resolution adopted last Saturday afternoon by the Hillsboro Farmers' Union meeting at the Veterans' hall.

"We should continue to boost the products which constitute one of the main industries of our area," John Flass, union president, said. A special resolution on the subject was drawn up and sent to the Oregon Journal.

The farm legislation bill to be proposed at the coming special session of congress, came up for review, with all present at the meeting going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Thomas A. Lenhart, president of the grocery clerks' union, spoke for a few minutes in presenting the going on record as opposed to it. The bill, as outlined at the meeting, calls for regulation of farmers' produce by the government, with annual quotas being set for each farm's crop by a government agency. The bill, it was said, would penalize farmers for either giving away or selling any produce, since all farm products would have to go through the government as sole selling agency.

Tigard Group Asks for Writ

Petition for writ of mandamus was filed in circuit court last Friday against the directors of school district No. 23, Tigard, charging them with having failed and refused to publish the compiled budget and date of hearing for 1938.

It is pointed out that the district is served by the Tigard Sentinel. Directors, including Con Selliken, Hans Gaarde and Charles F. Thompson, and A. D. Elliott, clerk, are said to have failed to comply with the law which calls for publication of meeting notices for two successive weeks prior to the meeting. Action has been brought by Charles A. Beaver on behalf of all residents and taxpayers of school district No.