Junior Red Cross Roll Call Gains

Washington County's Junior Red Cross roll call reached the 72-mark this week with 10 more schoolrooms reporting in the last few days, according to Mrs. Harry Morgan, assistant county school superintendent in charge of the roll call. Newcomers to the Junior Red Cross lists this week were four rooms from the Metzger school, two from St. Cecilia school in Beaverton, two from Hillsboro schools, and one room each from Seghers and Leisville schools. Prospects are excellent. Mrs. Morgan said for a 100 per cent representation from the Hillsboro schools before the close of the drive. Plan of the Junior Red Cross calls for a 50-cent donation from each room, taken up as a collection from the students. This payment enters the room in the Junior Red Cross program, which supplies all students with a Red Cross button and gives a magazine subscription to the room for the year, as well as educational posters and publications during the year.

Rudolph Serkin Guest Soloist

PORTLAND—The Portland symphony has introduced many great artists to the west, but none more distinguished or of greater fame than Rudolf Serkin, pianist of the generation, who will be heard as guest soloist with the orchestra at the Portland civic auditorium.

Serkin has taken the entire music world by storm. When he made his American debut with the New York philharmonic symphony several seasons ago, jaded music critics were so overcome in their spontaneous approval as was the delighted audience, and the great Toscanini, himself, broke all precedents by leaping from the podium and applauding the young artist.

The church has recently received a coat of paint and plans are being made to make other repairs in the spring.

The Epworth League has taken a project the supplying of the church with Methodist hymnals. Some have already been purchased and they hope to have a sufficient number to be dedicated on the anniversary Sunday.

The board of trustees invited all former members, all who have served, and all who have helped the church during its thirty years of service, both laymen and ministers to come and join in the anniversary, which is being celebrated with an all-day meeting. Present pastor is Rev. W. F. Willings.
