

Tigard School Board Suit is Dismissed

Anticipated clearing up of a technical point concerning requirements of legal notice publication in newspapers fell through this week with the dismissal of the suit of C. A. Boyer against the Tigard school district number 21 in circuit court on motion of plaintiff.

Had Expected Precedent

The school board allegedly failed to publish its proposed budget and meeting notices in the Tigard Sentinel, resulting in the suit sometime ago. The Sentinel is one of five weeklies of the Pioneer Publishing Company in Beaverton.

Rainfall Near Four Inches for Week

After halting almost completely last Wednesday, the current downpour of rain went back to work during the past week to pile up a total of 3.95 inches of precipitation during the seven-day period, according to figures given by A. W. Moore of the biological survey.

Last Friday marked the high spot of the week with 1.41 inches recorded. Monday, with 1.03, ranked second. Complete figures for the week are: Wednesday .91, Thursday .52, Friday 1.41, Saturday .60, Sunday .91, Monday 1.03, Tuesday .53. Total rainfall of the last three weeks totaled 8.55 inches.

Temperature average for the week dropped several degrees from the previous seven-day period with a high of 55 reached Saturday and a low of 40 that same night. Jackson Bottom, south of Hillsboro, had become a vast lake Wednesday, with water still rising as heavy rain continued. The water had reached a fence-post height by late afternoon.

WEST PROVES POPULAR The scenic west, with its towering mountains and many lakes, is the favorite vacation area among 19.1 per cent of the nation's travelers, according to figures in an A. A. survey released by the Oregon State Motor association.

Although the northeastern states rate the greatest favor, the western area scored most on scenery, favorably on climate and on the friendliness and hospitality of the people. Light traffic in the west was also considered an asset to travel.

The principal reason for popularity of the northeastern district was accessibility, although scenic attractions, historic points of interest, climate and accommodations were declared of considerable importance.

Farmington Men Kill Five Elk

(By Miss Helene Schultz) FARMINGTON—Edwin Burkhalter, Edgar Rehse and Loren Rehse returned Saturday night from the elk hunt in Eastern Oregon. There were eight in the hunting party and they brought out five elk. Loren Rehse's prize was a live-point elk, which he shot through the heart. The hunters were gone two weeks, having camped on the Grande Ronde about fifty miles from La Grande. The weather proved to be of great variety, rain, fog, snow, but generally mild and good for hunting. Andrew Lentz brought out the largest elk—a six-pointer.

Oregon's Lure Great Says Touring Expert

Eastern touring agencies were swamped with inquiries on western recreational areas this year and are expected to continue to be in greater numbers than ever before, according to Elmer Jenkins, manager of the American Automobile association's national touring bureau in Washington, D. C., who was an Oregon visitor this year.

Estimating an increase of around 25 per cent in east to west travel, he said the demand for complete maps and touring literature had made it necessary to plan more detailed sectional maps and tour books.

Jenkins, on a tour of western A. A. clubs, stopped at the offices of the Oregon State Motor association to discuss travel problems with Oregon counsellors.

"We are considering a new series of maps for the western area," he said, "simply because the touring agencies east of the Mississippi are demanding more and more material dealing with the west."

"Oregon and the northwest in general is becoming one of the most attractive vacation areas in the nation and it is the policy of the American Automobile association to keep in stride with all travel trends."

Before attending the Western Conference of Automobile clubs, held September 23 and 24 in Salt Lake City, he planned to visit the Automobile club of Washington in Seattle and the Inland Automobile association in Spokane.
