Legion Seeks
Amateur Talent
Do you perform Hindu rope tricks? Are you an expert at sword-swallowing? Has your club a burlesque play on Shakespeare? Can you perform an adagio or an Apache dance?

If you're able to do any of those tricks, or if you have any unusual act or ability, then you belong in the Hillsboro American Legion's annual amateur talent contest. This year's show will probably be held early in March, according to Jake Weil, Legion post commander, who is in charge of the contest, and anyone capable of turning in unusual or "different" performances is urged to send in an application, he said.

Last year's contest produced a number of excellent tap dancers, singers and instrumentalists. Weil said, but this year a number of other variety acts, in addition to the usual type, are desired. The first five place in last year's finals went to a tap dancer, a guitarist, and a five-year-old violinist.

"This year we want to make it bigger and better and more diversified than ever," Weil said.

Applicants for tryouts should send in their names to the Legion post office, who in addition to Weil are Leon S. Davis and A. J. Foelker. If a personal call is not possible, they should mail their applications to Weil in care of Weil's Department store.

Hens Lay Eggs, Ad Cancelled

ALOHA—T. J. Holyeross of Huber inserted an ad in the Argus for the sale of 75 hens. Next day an ad reader came and carried off the hens. Holyeross looked at the remaining 82 White Leghorns thoughtfully. He decided that there were too many to care for and ordered another ad in the Argus. A representative called for the ad. Mr. Holyeross came to the door with a reassuring smile.

"Those 82 hens," said he, "perhaps, intuitively remembering the fate of their unfortunate sisters, and fearful for the preservation of home ties through an ad in the Argus, put up an eloquent argument that I fell for. The next day they layed 65 eggs! I have changed my plans."

So, the order is cancelled and the 82 hens go on laying in their old home nests.
