

Mrs. Isaacson Honored on 90th Birthday

(By Mrs. Mary Sinclair) REEDVILLE—A surprise birthday party was given Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Anna Lingman in honor of the 90th birthday of her mother, Mrs. John Isaacson. Others present were Mesdames Will Handy, Joe Tabbs, C. Hurlin of Portland, C. E. Chaney of Oswego, Glenn Stiff, George Inlay, Charles Woolcox, Barrill, L. G. Olinger, Robert Dohmeier, Susie Isaacson and daughter Marion, and Mrs. John Erickson.

A beautiful white birthday cake decorated with pink roses and green leaves was presented to her by her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Susie Isaacson. Mrs. Isaacson received many beautiful gifts.

Birthday Celebrated O. Westcott celebrated Sunday when his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Corrieri, entertained a group of friends in honor of his birthday. Mr. Westcott has lived in Oregon the past 23 years, coming here from Nebraska. Present were O. Westcott, honor guest, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Boyd, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Martin, Mrs. Anna Thompson, Mrs. Clara Martin, Harry Youcem and Carl Darnell, all of Portland; Mr. and Mrs. H. Westcott and children of Gaston, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Westcott of North Plains, Mrs. M. Westcott and son Paul of Forest Grove and George Westcott of Cornelius.

Report of Farm Crops Committee

The committee believes that in some of the prune orchards quality could be improved by pulling out part of the trees. Where this has been done it has usually resulted in an improvement in the size and general quality of the prune crop, which is going to be of more and more importance.

While this is not a large surplus hay producing area, with the development of the Wolf creek and Wilson river roads it is certain that we will have a larger market for hay than we have had in the past. An improvement in the quality of our hay crop is possible through a little more careful handling from the time the hay is cut until the time that it goes into the bale.

(b) How to get into other markets not adequately reached now. An important aid in opening new markets would be a change in the method of determining freight rates on mixed car shipments. Under the existing set-up a mixed car shipment of, for instance horticultural products, would take the car freight rate for the commodity in the car that carries the highest rate. A change which would permit each commodity in the car to would materially lessen the total freight cost and would make possible mixed car lot shipments which would be a means of introducing local products into consuming territory which is not now covered effectively.

(c) Advertising recommendations: Oregon fruit crops particularly local products in the growers' advertising schemes for dried prunes have been proposed but have never met with success. With the canned prune pack apparently steadily increasing it would be logical to concentrate the advertising of Oregon prunes on the canned stuff. This is not offered as a deterrent to advertising dried prunes but since the immediate consumption emphasis is being placed on the canned product it would seem that an advertising campaign could be taking advantage of that situation by resisting the urge to stabilize.

(d) Possibilities of better market stabilization: The pea and vetch seed business in this county has grown to the point where in the past year it returned approximately one quarter of a million dollars to the grower. Additional expansion of this market is possible as the cotton belt to which most of this seed goes does not have in the past year a yield in excess of what we normally produce. Advice from that section does indicate the following:

1. That they desire to make arrangements early in the season for definite supplies of peas and vetch seed. Owing to fluctuations in the yield of these crops local dealers have been unable to make definite sales contracts or when they have done so have in some instances found that they had more seed than anticipated or in some other cases have been unable to fill their contracts because of a shortage.

2. That the price of this seed will follow the price of cotton, but the south seems willing to pay a price which will return to the local grower a fair income for growing such crops.

The committee believes that there are three improvements which might be made in the handling of this crop which would improve our market situation. (a) An important improvement, but one may not be practical, would be a considerable carry over at the end of each year. This would mean some volume of immediately deliverable seed at the beginning of each marketing season which might take up the slack in the short year. This has a disadvantage in that first a carry over frequently results in the trade depressing the price in the current season's production; second, no one wants to finance that carry over.

(b) The committee believes that the all too frequent practice of the trade to offer a low price during the winter and spring preceding harvest results in the growers holding back and postponing sales.

3. Correlation of Crop and Feed Supplies with Livestock Numbers. Adjustment and shifts in the acreage such as outlined in the beginning of this report would just about balance the supply with local feed demands, when poultry needs are not considered.

Members of the crops committee were F. H. Jossy, chairman, Elmer Guerber, Ferd Langer, John F. Kamna, F. J. Lewis, Ferd Putnam, John Plass, J. A. Sewell, Jack Crop, Perry LaFollette, Lloyd Anderson and Chester Kable.

JUST "GETTING ROLLING AGAIN" can waste 1/3 Mile of gas!

A mile of stop-and-go driving around home may well be a mile and a half to your engine.

That's because in "low" gear, your engine makes about 12 turns for each turn of your wheels. In "second," about 8 . . . in "high," only about 4.

Shell engineers found that "getting rolling again" from a single stop can waste enough "undigested" gasoline to carry you 1/3 of a mile.

To cut this costly waste, they found a way to rearrange the chemical structure of gasoline, making every drop usable to your motor under all driving conditions.

SUPER-SHELL SHELL SAVED ON STOP AND GO YOUR GEAR RATIO IN HIGH GEAR IS ABOUT 4 TO 1 IN SECOND GEAR IS ABOUT 8 TO 1 IN LOW GEAR IS ABOUT 12 TO 1 The more you STOP and START, the farther your engine travels in comparison to your wheels . . . and the greater your waste of "undigested" gasoline. You can save on your stop-and-go driving costs by the regular use of Super-Shell. Try it—and see for yourself what a difference it makes!
