400 Seniors of County Attend Meet

Nearly 400 seniors from all of Nearly 400 seniors from all of Washington county's high schools met at Hillsboro union high school last week to discuss vocations and college education. The morning's program was devoted to introduc-tion of various student body of-ficers and talks from several edu-cators and officials of state schools. Box Putners cators and officials of state schools. Rex Putnam, state superinten-dent of public instruction; Dr. D. V. Poling, field representative of state schools; Dr. E. M. Pallett, University of Oregon registrar; J. A. Churchill, president of Mon-mouth Normal school; and E. B. Lemon, Oregon State college regis-trar, were included on the speak-ers' program. ers' program.

Afternoon activities saw the sen-lors divide into four discussion groups, including those interested in each of the three state schools and those who do not plan to con-tinue their education in college. In addition to aiding the coming spring's graduates, the conference was calculated to make possible a better acquaintanceship between students of the different county high schools.

high schools. Student committee chairmen in charge of the affair at Hilhi in-cluded Dorothy Challacombe, regis-tration; Peggy Ross, reception; Harold Wojahn, ushers; Bob Alli-son, introduction: Helen Haldum and Ira Stauss, check room, Miss Elsie May Cimino and Mildred Krahmer decorated and took charge of the cafeteria. Miss Tennessee Weatherred, senior class advisor, assisted in the planning and work of all commitees, with B. W. Barnes and B. M. Goodman, su-perintendent and principal of Hil-hi, assisting, Elvis Dickason, Hills-boro student body president, presi-dent at the conference.

Five Discussion Meetings Slated

Five district meetings have been Five district meetings have been arranged for explanation and dis-cussion of the Soil Conservation Service by Chehalem Mountain project administrators, according to Ivan C. DeArmond, project manager.

Local representatives of the conservation service will participate in the programs, with lantern slides being shown to illustrate the prob-em of erosion control. Schedule lem of erosion control. Schedule of meetings, together with re-spective chairmen, as announced by DeArmond, includes: February 17. Chehalem Center Grange, H. E. Cooper; February 21. Scholls. John Schmeltzer: February 22. Middleton, Charles Haynes; Febru-ary 23, West Chehalem (No. 10 school), E. S. Strother; February 25. Springbrook Cannery, Victor Rees. All residents of the districts and other interested people are urged to attend, DeArmond said.

Beaverton high school lays claim to an unusual record with two sets of triplets listed as members of its band. From left, they are Elizabeth, Laura and Florence Ewer, Vera, Vida and Vina Green. The Ewer bills are compared to yours old and line in Aleba, while the Green sinks and Vina Green. The Ewer sisters are sophomores, 16 years old, and live in Aloha, while the Green girls are freshmen, 17, and are Beaverton residents .- Cut courtesy Oregonian
