The thousands of law-abiding citizens in this state, union and non-union, should back to the limit Governor Martin, Mayor Carson and other public officers in their efforts to rid this state of the labor terrorism that has so disrupted the social and economic life.

Many wish that the same determined efforts would be put forth by the administration to bring about social and economic peace throughout the nation.

In view of the fact that the regular primary election is May 20, it would have seemed much more reasonable for the proponents of the seven-county power district to have provided for the election on that date.

Should Be Amended

Surely the industrial strife of the last year has been of such serious moment as to cause the government and liberty-loving citizens to stop, look and listen.

These troubles bring home forcibly the necessity of amending the Wagner act as recommended by Secretary of Commerce Roper's business advisory committee.

Changes as recommended and which should make for a more equitable set-up provide that: (a) Neither the act, nor its administration favor any particular form of bona fide labor organization.

Employers shall be free in self-organization and collective bargaining from interference, restraint, or coercion from any source.

The question of creating a seven-county public ownership district is a serious one for the taxpayers. There are a lot of questions to be answered and full light should be given the entire problem.

Harry Bridges claims to be working to raise the standard of living of American workmen. If being the king pin in two of the coast's big maritime strikes of recent years in which thousands were thrown out of work, markets lost and farm produce cheapened is raising standards of living, we have another guess coming.

Newspapers and Driving Problem "Newspapers mold public opinion faster than any other agency and should be enlisted in the campaign to end drunken driving," says W. A. Gabrielson, Honolulu police chief, in a paper read at the recent National Safety Congress.

It is reliably estimated that drunken driving has at least doubled since the repeal of prohibition. Today it is one of the principal causes of motor accidents. Surveys carried on in various states indicate that liquor is a factor in 10 to 20 per cent of all accidents involving a fatality or a major injury.

All of these changes are needed and would, we believe, go a long way toward making for industrial peace. At present it is all one-sided and is really detrimental to the best interests of the working man.

Aloha Dinner

Hillsboro business people always look forward to the annual Hillsboro-Aloha dinner at Aloha Grange hall and a large attendance is expected tonight.

Little business men met in Washington at the call of the president. While the meeting was more like a free-for-all than the orderly session that might have been expected some worthwhile suggestions came out of it.

President Roosevelt wants business to rebound without cutting wages or laying off men. Sounds fine to the wage earner but every man who is worth the wages he earns knows that it can't be done.

One thing is very clear. If John L. Lewis wants to give communism a trial, the road to Russia is still open, and not a few Americans would be willing to speed him on his journey.

Livestock Committee Report

(Made at County Agricultural Economic Conference January 27)

In considering the scope of the work of this committee the following phases of livestock production in Washington county together with questions pertaining to the same were considered:

- 1. National and state outlook and market possibilities. 2. Livestock numbers as estimated by the 1937 AAA planning committee. 3. Relation of livestock numbers to feed resources.

1. National and State Outlook and Market Possibilities (a) Dairy—The outlook report issued by the bureau of economics points out that dairying prospects during the next several years are moderately favorable.

(b) Hogs—The national outlook indicates a somewhat increased supply in the next ten years over the past few years but prices apparently should not reach the level of 1932-1933.

(c) Poultry—With increasing competition both in egg production and in turkey raising from the middle-west, east and south-west, it appears inadvisable to increase either the number of hens being kept on Oregon farms.

(d) Sheep—The number of sheep raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(e) Swine—The number of swine raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(f) Horses—The number of horses raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(g) Cattle—The number of cattle raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(h) Pigs—The number of pigs raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(i) Goats—The number of goats raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(j) Rabbits—The number of rabbits raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(k) Ducks—The number of ducks raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(l) Geese—The number of geese raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(m) Chickens—The number of chickens raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(n) Turkeys—The number of turkeys raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(o) Pheasants—The number of pheasants raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(p) Quail—The number of quail raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(q) Partridges—The number of partridges raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(r) Game Birds—The number of game birds raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(s) Wild Birds—The number of wild birds raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

(t) Insects—The number of insects raised should be limited to the number needed to clean up fields and fence rows.

Doubts at Rest

(By A. L. Lindbeck)

SALEM—Any doubt as to Governor Governor Martin's attitude toward a second term were at rest this week by the appearance of buttons bearing the governor's picture and the slogan, "Re-elect Governor Martin."

Supporters of the governor feel that his chances for a second term are excellent. Speculation around the state house centers on two guesses: That Snell will either be a candidate for a second term in his present office or that he will make a try for the republican nomination for United States senator, leaving the gubernatorial field open for some other candidate.

Secretary of State Earl Snell has promised to end the suspense that has centered around his political intentions with a statement before this week is ended—probably for Sunday morning release.

A proposal to set up a state sanitary authority for sustained in a initiative measure, preliminary copies of which were filed with Secretary of State Snell this week.

The measure is sponsored by the Stream Purification League of Oregon, which State Treasurer Rufus Holman is president. Mrs. Hal D. Patton of Salem, vice-president, and Senator Byron G. Harrison of Milwaukie, chairman of the committee on legislation.

The proposed sanitary authority would consist of the state health officer, state engineer, chairman of the state fish commission and three members to be appointed by the governor, one from each congressional district.

Improvements scheduled for the state fair grounds this year include a new administration building, 40 by 100 feet in size, to be located at the west entrance.

The building, which will replace the one razed a few years ago, will be erected as a WPA project.

Beneficiaries during January set a new high record. Checks in payment of assistance to the aged, persons on relief, blind and dependent children clearing through the state treasury department during the first ten days of February aggregated $288,425.37, State Treasurer Holman reported.

A total of 10,427 trucks and busses operating in Oregon during 1937 paid a total of $1,094,240 in fees to the public utilities commission, according to a report by N. G. Wallace, utilities commissioner.

Gregg revenues of trucks and busses operating under state permits aggregated $4,903,484 for the year, Wallace reported.

Oregon's tax system is in need of a complete overhauling, Governor Martin declared in an address before a group of real estate men at Salem last week.

The governor did not point out any specific reforms he might have in mind for the tax system, but pointed out that an interim commission, created by the last legislature was now at work on that problem.

Decision of Secretary of State Snell to certify a short term United States senatorship on the November ballot is expected to bring out a number of candidates for this post.

Snell's decision was based upon an oral opinion by Attorney General Van Winkle reiterating an old opinion given in 1918 holding that senators appointed by the governor to fill a vacancy held office only until the date of the general election.

The short term senator will draw pay from November 8 until January 3 in spite of the fact that he will have no duties to perform unless congress should meet in special session.

Bank deposits in Oregon are once more on a depression level, according to Mark Skinner, state superintendent of banks.

Deposits in state banks in the state as of December 31, totaled $306,434,135.25, compared to the all-time high record of $307,861,645 reached at the time of the December 31, 1928, call.

Flax growers grossed an average of $44.80 an acre on their 1937 crop. L. L. Lewis, manager of the state flax plant, told Governor Martin in a report this week.

An early spring with a big demand for seasonal labor in Oregon is predicted by John E. Cooter, farm placement director for the state employment service.

Cooter urges farmers to avail themselves of the free employment service in meeting their needs for labor.

Approximately 35 per cent of the more than 50,000 jobless workers who have filed claims for unemployment insurance are found to be ineligible for unemployment benefits, according to A. Bulmore, administrator for the commission.

Short, quick cooking should be the rule for fish; a hot fire for broiling and a hot oven for baking.

Babson Says Advertising will Help to Defeat "Recession"

(By Roger W. Babson) BABSON PARK, Fla.—Business sentiment is about as bad as I ever remember. I think it is even flatter than in the 1922-23 period. Yet, strange as it may seem, this is a good sign.

be encouraged. Advertising is the best means to cut in your sales budget unless you want to close up shop. Cutting prices is just as essential as maintaining or stepping up your advertising quotas.

Why Not Advertising "Relief" If all concerns in the same industry would agree to spend a certain percentage of their gross sales on advertising, the policy might be workable.

Three Buying Rules I have three specific suggestions along this line for the months ahead. Shop carefully for your food. Always stock up on "sale" day on your staples.
