

"Approach to World Peace," B. P. Talk

"Friendship with other nations will do more to keep America out of war than anything else," said David E. Norcross of Seattle, in his address before the Business and Professional Women's club Friday night at the chamber of commerce. Mr. Norcross, substituting for J. J. Handsaker, who was unable to attend, took as his subject, "Economic Approach to World Peace," an international subject in keeping with the program for February.

He said that of the many nations in unsettled conditions, the seven major nations were arming, three to reach out to take more, and the other four to hold what they have. He urged the women to write to congress and make a plea to keep out of war, saying that he never settled anything, but deprived the nation of its most physically and mentally fit young men.

Little Katherine Reule played several selections on the violin, accompanied by Mrs. George Reule, and the coffee club trio. Mrs. Vesey Gardner, Mrs. Ben Faber, and Mrs. William Enschede, sang three numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Fred Sewell.

A "hard times" party had been arranged by the dinner committee, and decorations carried out the same motif, with small red hearts and candy valentines scattered around on the tables.

Mrs. Gordon Sahnow received the prize for the best "hard times" costume, with Mrs. Maude Boscow and Mrs. Emma McKinney tying for second.

Miss Lucille Fisher won the award offered by the Time magazine for the most correct answers to a current event questionnaire. The contest was held at the library on Wednesday night preceding the meeting, and the award was a $5 book.

The public relations dinner will be held March 13, with the business meeting and a card party the Monday night preceding.

The club voted $5 to the "Save Battleship Oregon Fund."

W. C. Jacksons Observe Golden Wedding Date

Mr. and Mrs. William Calvin Jackson celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sunday at their farm near North Plains with their five children and four grandchildren present for a family dinner.

They were married in Washington county at the home of Mrs. Jackson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fletcher, west of North Plains on February 15, 1888, when Mr. Jackson was 21 and Mrs. Jackson—now Annis Fletcher—not quite 19. Rev. William E. Smith, father-in-law of Colonel Thomas B. Cornelius, founder of the city of Cornelius and one of the old-time Methodist ministers in Washington county, performed the ceremony.

Present at the dinner Sunday were three daughters and two sons, who remain of a family of six girls and three boys. Those present were Otis Calvin Jackson of North Plains, with wife and two daughters, Evelyn and Elaine; Mrs. Ethel Jackson of North Plains, with her wife and daughter LaVelle; Mrs. Ethel Beach of Hillsboro; Mrs. Herman May, Crocker and son, John Calville, and Mrs. Corneille route 1; and Mrs. Jake (Jessie) Rinker of Portland.

On Farm Since Marriage

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson have lived on their farm just north of North Plains since the time of their marriage, with "only a few vacations," Mrs. Jackson said. For the past several weeks, Mr. Jackson has been confined to bed with an attack of inflammatory rheumatism. "I'm not used to this kind of work," he said. "When I was a child I had an attack of measles, and then a seven weeks' siege of spinal meningitis shortly after my marriage. From then on until last spring, when he broke down when he slipped on icy ground while carrying hay from the barn, he enjoyed perfect health. "I'll be up again soon," he said.

He was born in the house he now occupies, which was built by his father more than three-quarters of a century ago. He owns 500 acres of land, which is his share of his father's original donation of land claim. Only 100 acres are being farmed by Mr. Jackson, the balance being either rented or in pasture and timber land. His father, Ulysses Jackson, filed on a large section of land claim shortly after he came to the county from West Virginia in 1847. His mother was also a Southerner, coming here in 1852 from Virginia. He is the youngest of a family of five boys and four girls, of which only he and a sister, Mrs. Crane of Milwaukee, Oregon, oldest of the family, remain.

Mrs. Jackson's parents came to Washington county from Missouri in 1864 and settled north of Cornelius not far from where the Jackson home is now. Her mother, Mary Anne Douglas, was of Scotch and Irish descent, while her father, John Fletcher, was French and Welsh. She is the only living member of the Fletcher family.
