SEE AMERICA'S NEWEST TRACTOR "70"

Deciding on power is important business for the modern farm. So before you buy any tractor, or even a team, see and drive the Row Crop "70". Inquire, test, compare. Two years ago the "70" first appeared—new in its 6 cylinders, its automotive advances, its streamlines. More than a new tractor, the "70" was then as the "70" is today, a new idea in farm power.

Miss Perry and Mr. Gnos Married

CORNELIUS—Miss Eva Katherine Perry was united in marriage to Joseph Gnos at a pretty ceremony Saturday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Perry, of Hillsboro. Rev. George Reule of the Hillsboro Lutheran church officiated, using the impressive ring service. A fire-place with two large baskets of peach gladioli and ferns on either side with white candelabra at the back formed the altar.

Miss Ruth Cramer played Lohengrin's wedding march.

The bride wore a dress of white satin with long train and high neck. Her fingertip tulle veil was caught in a halo of seed pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of bouvardia, sweet peas and bride's roses caught with tulle streamers.

The maid of honor, Miss Donna Marie Shannon, wore a peach lace dress with bolero jacket and a Juliet cap of seed pearls. Her bouquet was also colonial of pastel sweet peas. Miss Cramer wore a blue sheer afternoon frock.

Frank Gnos, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Following the wedding, studio pictures were taken after which a reception was held. The bride's table was in white with a beautiful wedding cake decorated with a miniature bride and groom, roses and wedding bells.

Miss Alice Wolfe caught the bride's bouquet and the guests signed their names in a wedding book, a gift from the pastor.

Serving were Mrs. Herb Schuler, Mrs. Henry Haase and Mrs. Katherine Bodenmuller.

Mrs. Gnos is a graduate of Condon high school. The groom is the son of Mrs. Margaret Gnos of Iowa Hill and is a graduate of Hillsboro high school. He has taught the Iowa school for the past two years and will attend Oregon State college this year. The couple are living in Hillsboro at present.
