It takes this much gasoline to go a mile in low gear...

And this much to go a mile in second...

But only this much to go a mile in high....

In stop and go, a mile S-T-R-E-T-C-H-E-S

In low and second, your engine makes up to 3 times as many revolutions as in high—uses 3 times as much gasoline

Nowadays, no matter where you drive in town or country, you can't avoid stop-and-go. But you can do something about its cost. Shell engineers found that getting away from a traffic stop can waste enough "undigested" gasoline to carry you 1/2 of a mile. To cut this costly waste, they rearranged the chemical structure of gasoline. They make every drop of Super-Shell "motor digestible" under all driving conditions. You can save on driving costs by the regular use of Super-Shell. Try it.

STOP-AND-GO driving fools your speedometer—while your car is going a mile, your engine may go the equivalent of two. The number of extra revolutions your engine makes depends on how many times you stop and start—how much of your driving is in low and second gears.
