SCHOLLS The "pageant" of Jesus bids "Goodbye to Bethany" under the direction of Rev. Sibley will be presented Easter evening at the Methodist church. There will be regular Sunday school and church services in the morning. Cast includes: Virgil Bush, Mrs. V. Bush, Mrs. Harold Christensen, Beverly Armitage, Jean Bennett, Leiland Twigg, Ruth Christensen and Ethel Newby.

Demonstration Set
On March 27 at 1:30 p. m. the Junior Women's club is sponsoring a food demonstration. This will be held at the church and everyone is invited.

Entertain Group
Mrs. Henry Hesse and Mrs. Max Bennett were hostesses last Tuesday noon when the Ladies entertained the Women's club at a luncheon in the church parlors. In honor of St. Patrick's Day flowers for the table were imbedded in large Irish potatoes while curly tatted pigs made from green gumdrops looked on. The president, Mrs. W. B. Chandler, who had just returned from a trip to California, found at her place a "Homecoming" cake a little token of appreciation from the club. Two lovely corsages were presented by the president, one to the guest speaker, Miss Kathleen McCrae, Washington county home demonstration agent, and one to another honored guest, Mrs. Minnie Bennett, now of Blue Lake, who was a charter member of the club. Mrs. Carl Johnson was voted into the club. A trio composed of the Messrs. William Chandler, Max Bennett and Joe Stretcher sang two numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Ina Sutherland, Mrs. Walter Jaquith, who had charge of the program, gave a short talk introducing the theme of the afternoon, "The American Home." Mrs. F. R. Sibley then read the poem "The Common Task" and Mrs. Walter Orr read

"The Happy Task" by Grace Nell Crosswell. Miss McCrae's talk followed and was on the subject "Appreciation of the American Home." Another of Edgar Guest's poems, "Home" was read by Mrs. Venua Bunnell. Program closed with a roll call on "What do I enjoy most about my home."

Grangers Meet
The grangers treated themselves and their visitors Saturday to a turkey dinner. Mr. and Mrs. John Schmelzer were host and hostess. The hall was decorated in baskets of flowering branches. Len Guild, chairman of the recent mens' banquet committee, reported that $90 had been cleared. The lecturer Mrs. Walter Jaquith, presented the following program: Poem read by Mrs. Frank Rowell; poem, read by Mrs. Henry Hesse; talk, "Vitamins B for plants" by John Schmelzer, reading by J. H. Bartlett followed by open discussion on rodent control, talk "The Torture of the Steel Trap" by Paul Jaquith. The last half of the program was devoted to the subject of health and was centered around twelve short selected articles pertaining to new scientific discoveries regarding the relation of food and health.

Women Meet Tuesday
Scholls and Kinton women will have their second home demonstration unit meeting Tuesday at 1 p. m. in Scholls Grange hall. Subject will be "Economy Dressmaking, color as applied to the individual." Miss Kathleen McCrae, county home demonstration agent, will have charge of the meeting. All the women in the community are invited.

Eighty-two were at Sunday school last Sunday. There was a baptismal and christening during the church hour and twelve were taken into full church membership. The baby christened was Gerald LeRoy Wendland, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wendland. Bart Rowell sang.

Marybel Flint and Bonnie Bartlett are home from Corvallis for a week's vacation.

Junior Woman's club met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Charles Haynes. They were honored by having the following visitors present: Mrs. Conklin, president of Wash-

Hewett was later released on $1000 bail pending appearance in court. Elsie Koski, Tigard, a passenger in the Strange car, was treated at the emergency hospital in Portland for minor injuries sustained in the mishap.

Public Relations Man Billed for Chamber
W. F. Solbeck of the public relations council of the Portland chamber of commerce will be the main speaker on the Hillsboro chamber of commerce program next Monday noon, according to Howard Hadley, president.

COLUMBIA RIVER GORGE
Four thousand feet far down below the farmer starts to plow and sow. While up above him where the arches And fire escarp in dark green arches, Where vegetation grows in places, Naught else but fields of alfalfa grow. These streams creep out beneath the waste, And leave their footprints on the hills. They lose their foothold, fall over rocks, Then drop and glide, renew their knicks, Explore with mysterious names, Weird echoes wake in mountain tombs, Energy and leap for half a mile. Their fingers, reaching all the while, A work of art that shall not fade, Such art by human hands not made, Cathedral spires, vast Taj Mahals, Basaltic temples, royal halls, Domes and fanes and battlements, All made by mysterious elements. Titanic gallery and esplanade, The walls are tinted with liquid jade, Waken's feet race down the hill, Multnomah's voice is never still. —C. E. BARKER.

CCC Applications Now Being Taken At Relief Office

Applications for quarterly C. C. C. enrollment are now being accepted at the Washington county public welfare office, according to an announcement from Carolyn B. Campbell, administrator.

On April 4 the quarterly allotment for enrollment in C. C. C. will be completed. Qualifications for enrollment are for any unemployed youth between the ages of 17 and 22 years, a citizen of the United States, in good physical condition and of good character. The C. C. C. not only provides employment but vocational training as well for youthful citizens of the United States who are in need of work.

The civilian conservation corps is in no respect a military project and enrollees are not enlisted in the army but remain civilians throughout their terms of service. Mrs. Campbell pointed out in calling for the applications. Other facts stressed were that enrollees receive no military instruction, are not liable to military law and do not necessarily have to have a relief status in order to apply.

It was also announced that the veterans' contingent of the C. C. C. has vacancies which will be filled during the next replacement period commencing April 1 and ending April 30. Appropriately discharged veteran who is usually able to do ordinary manual labor is eligible for enrollment. Application blanks may be obtained by writing to Dr. Paul I. Carter, manager of the veterans' administration, Portland.

War Conditions Direct Interest To Oregon Flax

With most of the principal fiber flax producing countries now at war or seriously affected by the conflict, increased interest is being shown in the fiber flax industry in Oregon, according to agricultural officials at Oregon State college.

Data published by the United States department of agriculture shows that most of the unmanufactured flax fiber imported into the United States comes from Russia, Belgium, the United Kingdom, and the Netherlands. Two of these sources are now at war and trade with the other two is seriously disrupted.

Room for Development
Practically all of the fiber flax produced in the United States is grown in the Willamette valley, where the most of the unmanufactured flax fiber imported during the past four years, however, has been approximately equivalent to only one-fifth of the amount of unmanufactured flax fiber imported. The area of flax fiber harvested in Oregon averaged approximately 3000 acres from 1936 to 1939.

Although much is heard of Irish linen, actual acreage in Erie (Ireland) is not much greater than that in Oregon, averaging around 4000 acres. Russia, with four million acres, is the largest producer, while next in order come Poland, Lithuania, Latvia, Germany, Belgium, France, Holland, Estonia, Italy, Rumania, Yugoslavia, and the United Kingdom.

Imports Large
United States imports of unmanufactured flax fiber averaged approximately 3550 short tons annually for the three years ending June, 1939, federal figures show. Imports during the last half of 1939, however, were nearly as great as the annual average for the previous three years. Whether normal imports can be maintained during the war is uncertain, but it is evident that the demand in this country is far greater than the domestic supply, say the college agricultural officials.

In addition to the unmanufactured flax fiber, the United States imports also a large amount of linen products from various European coun-
