Dissenters Still Permitted

TOP—What with censorship and other vexing restrictions, the poor Briton, caught in the grip of war, hasn't too much freedom these days. At Hyde Park, long a British citadel of free speech, the government, curiously enough, still permits dissenters to babble away. Shown here is an elderly gentleman, addressing a motley audience.

BOTTOM—While Italy continues to balance herself adroitly on the flimsy fence of neutrality, her preparations for war are pursued with undiminished vigor. The military is very active, and soldiers are frequently seen in peaceful looking Italian cities. This Bersaglieri acknowledges the unblinking admiration of nice signoras during a moment off duty.

Illness Drops Attendance

MCKINLEY-ELMONICA—Attendance at McKinley school continues to be broken up by illness. Several children are out with mumps and flu has again been prevalent. The Kingsbury family were all ill at once. Mumps had three victims in the Struck family at last report.
