

Berry Season Around Buxton At Its Peak

BUXTON—Local Berry Growers have had all the pickers they could get busy the last couple of days in a "last minute rush" to get all the berries possible to the bar-relers believing they were closing due to the shortage of barrels. Barrels have been received and picking is on regular schedule again, however. In the hills the crop is just approaching its peak while the peak is past on the lower ground.

Speaking of Invasions

People....

She Gets the Breaks

Ann Peters, who returned here Sunday evening from Cotley college, Nevada, Mo., will no doubt tell anyone who bothers to ask "How have you been?" that "it's been a bone-breaking year."

Not that college has been so severe on Miss Peters, but, as fate would have it, broken bones "in a very literal sense" ushered in and brought to a close her freshman year at the mid-western college. She was hobbling about with the aid of a cane when she left, her disability being the aftermath of a broken leg suffered in a fall while skating at a seashore rink.

Ann did not fall and break her other leg en route home, but when she did arrive here, it was to learn that her mother, Mrs. R. Frank Peters, had just suffered a broken arm from a fall while shopping in downtown Hillsboro the day before.

No Mystery Here

Don Douris, who will speak at the Methodist church here Sunday evening, is a teller in a Salem bank. Aside from his daily routine, he finds time to coach three basketball teams, direct Salem's largest Boy Scout troop, and take a leading part in numerous other civic enterprises. He was the delegate of Oregon churches to the World Christian youth conference in Amsterdam, Holland, last year, has served as president of the Salem Youth council, has had a directing hand in both the Salem Breakfast club and the Salem junior chamber, of which he was first treasurer, and follows a number of personal hobbies in his "spare time."

On February 10, 1940, he was selected by the Salem junior chamber as Salem's "first junior citizen" for the year 1939. And no wonder!

Shady Brook

The Minamoto farm is quite a beehive of activity in the harvest of 58 acres of fine strawberries this season. They have a miniature tent city, where a large part of their 250 pickers camp. A temporary store operated also, which is the first in this community.

The old swimming hole on the Hartman Stauss farm has been quite a favorite spot for many this last week.
