Poster Service
Here Gets Benefit
Of U. S. Publicity

The Floyd E. Bentley Poster Service little known "big business" which has grown up in this community during the past ten years, received nationwide recognition this month with a full-page layout of illustrations in the current issue of "Signs of the Times" national journal of advertising display.

The illustrations are of recent processed posters which Bentley turns out in his plant located behind Bennett's Sweet Shop. His silk-screen-equipment plus a knowledge of advertising display and skill in hand-cutting of stencils creates posters from the small window-card size to the large 24-sheet size used on Foster and Kleiser billboards.

Bentley's handcraft was featured less than a year ago in an article which appeared in another national magazine, the "Commercial Car Journal," but origin of clever signs and posters reproduced in that article was not given to the public.
