

County People Attend McNary Notification

of virgin soil await only life-giving water, as long as Americans prefer work to ease, and as long as well-being is inequitably distributed, then we say that America is not finished.

"Our job is to work for an integrated, self-confident country, ready to undergo the discipline of the pioneer to the end that we may not only survive in a threatening world but distribute our blessings more abundantly. The call is for a disciplined people. I prefer the self-discipline of the pioneer to the imposed discipline of the European autocracies."

Among the first specifications for the reconstruction of America, Senator McNary said was "the preservation and fuller employment of the natural resources of soil, forest and water power."

"For 20 years I have sought means and measures to better the lot of the agrarian producer. For the moment let me say that the republican platform recommends a hopeful and affirmative farm program. It indorses the principle of parity. It advocates—and this is a departure—increased payments to farmers willing to experiment with tillage of crops we now import."

"We stand pledged to continue soil conservation payments. Commodity surplus loans; to encourage acquisition of farms by tenants and for research aimed at developing industrial uses for products of the soil. We favor continuing the food stamp program, which serves the double purpose of assisting the needy and helping the farmer by reducing surplus crops."

"Any national plan must assist the American farmer. Besides being far and away the greatest market, it is the only one we may hope to control."

"The farmer is, at least, entitled to that and no treasury benefits can compensate him for its loss. Yet the new deal, which in seven years has failed to map a long-range plan for reconstituting the agricultural economy, piles confusion upon confusion by following two contradictory policies at once. With one hand the new deal pays farmers not to sow crops and reap; with the other it lowers tariff barriers so that foreign growers undersell our own in our market."

"For years I have advocated a two-price system; a system enabling us to export without injuring the domestic price level. The McNary-Haugen act, which looked to that end, was twice vetoed by a president. Although conditions have altered radically since the bill was last rejected, I maintain with undiminished faith that some such formula must still be sought."

"Farm recovery may well be part of a greater whole. The recovery of our whole economy hinges to some degree upon removal of such obstacles to easy commerce as adverse government policies, restrictive laws, burdensome taxation and the uncertainties arising from pyramiding debt. The over-all solution may only await the installation of an administration which wholeheartedly wishes again to see the United States a going concern."

"Unflatteringly, the congress has granted to the public preferential rights to power generated from navigable streams. Such power should be common heritage. The government, having made this power available, should have an indisputable right to control its utilization and distribution. Maximum benefits for domestic consumers, farmers and small users of power should be the yardstick by which we measure the usefulness and serviceability of every federal development."

"Moreover, rates should be maintained at the lowest level consistent with sound amortization. Where irreconcilable conflicts arise between public and private interests in the development and distribution of power, private holdings should not be confiscated, and we now have a working precedent for such fair treatment in the recent acquisition by purchase of private companies by the Tennessee valley authority."

"I oppose involvement in foreign military adventures. America, as always, prefers peace. But America does not prefer the peace of appeasement; nor the surrender of our national dignity, our independence of action, our political freedom or the civilized values that we cherish."

Chairman Martin announced that Senator McNary would make six or seven major speeches during the campaign, the first to be on the farm situation in the midwest shortly after September 20.

Old Friend Visits—

Mrs. Percy Weik had as her house guest last week Mrs. Riley M. Hart of Detroit, Michigan. The ladies were Normal school classmates in Asheville, N. C., twenty-eight years ago, and had not seen each other since that time until Mrs. Hart recently came to Oregon. She will visit in Portland for several weeks, then in California and Arizona before returning to her home in Detroit.

Axis Power Seeks Balkan Settlement

Adolph Hitler conferred Wednesday with his diplomats and then sends them off to Vienna to try and induce Hungary and Rumania to compose their territorial dispute lest it flare into war. Adding urgency to the peace-making attempt were reports of Rumanian and Hungarian frontier incidents and of bloody clashes between Rumanian and Russian forces.

German bombers smashed heavily at the Kent coast and the Thames estuary leading to London Wednesday. British defenders were reported to have shot down 15 raiders.

In Washington, D. C., the senate ran roughshod over a third attempt to soften the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill when it defeated an amendment which would prevent any draft until congress declared a state of emergency.
