

Youth Hostels Praised By B. P. W. Speaker

Praising the American Youth Hostels as "giving a thrill to new trails," Miss Alice Robins of the Washington County Public Health Office gave an informative talk at her bicycle trip through Europe two years ago.

Miss Robins said she was quite interested in passing along the word of hosting. It enables one to see parts of countries not on the regular path usually taken by travelers. The cost of hosting is $1 per day, including food and sleeping accommodations. "Anyone can be a hostler," she said, "that is anyone between the ages of four and 84." There are regulations to live up to, such as good citizenship and good sportsmanship. The cost of a national Youth Hostel, have a pass book and sleeping sheet. These hostels provide inexpensive overnight accommodations, sometimes set up in farm buildings with attached farm folk acting as "house parents." A knowledge of house cooking is also a help as one cooks his own food in some places.

Miss Robins said she was quite suddenly to go on this trip with a friend and had to learn to ride a bicycle in a short time to be able to travel. They traveled at the rate of 45 to 60 miles per day through Scotland and England. Some hostels are built in old castles of the 13th and 14th centuries, overlooking estates of royalty, she said. They stayed at a hostel which overlooked the estate of Duke and Duchess of Gloucester. Other travelers often joined their party and told of the history and scenery. London, she said, was a story by itself. They found southern England much warmer with more gardens and flowers. Crossed the channel at Dover to Ostend, Belgium, where a Dutch boat rode with them for six days, telling all about the country. In Germany they found a decidedly military atmosphere. Groups of boys and girls marched to and from their work. Italian air was lovely, said the speaker, and there seemed to be a musical spontaneity about the Italians, as all ages would break into song at unexpected times. France was enjoyed, but to thoroughly appreciate the country one should be able to speak the language.

Miss Robins displayed many pictures of places visited on her 1500-mile bicycle trip, but no doubt some of them are in ruins now.

Leola May Young played several flute selections, accompanied by Patti Crocker, and Wallace Truman entertained the diners with a humorous reading. Mrs. Verda Zanderan led in singing club songs, with Mrs. Jesse Sewell as accompanist.

Roll Call of members on "What Hillsboro Needs" brought out some very good suggestions on improving the home, the need for a swimming pool predominating in the responses.

Aversions Traceable—Most of us can explain an intense aversion to a particular food by its association with some painful event, or remember first discovering that we liked a new food when it was eaten on a gala occasion.

Man's Instinct or Ability to Select a Satisfactory Diet from among a number of foods or to modify the diet to meet changes in nutritive requirements has also been demonstrated. There is a careful report of three young children who were allowed complete freedom among a wide variety of natural foods over a long period of time. The diets selected met all their nutritive requirements and resulted in excellent growth.

Hunger and appetite can be made valuable aids in securing the acceptance of food. Hunger, which is due to actual contractions of the stomach, stimulates the seeking of food. Appetite, on the other hand, is associated with the presence, or even the memory, of pleasant odors and flavors of food, and may occur even when the stomach is full.

At present sufficient evidence to determine the exact manner in which the body recognizes nutritional deficiencies and determines the choice of food is lacking. One suggestion is that nutritional deficiencies cause physiological changes in the body and that these changes alter the taste mechanism and set up a craving for a specific food.
