Stamp Plan Would Start in December

mended after a series of conferences with Jack Luhn, chairman of the state public welfare commission.

Robert Graves, assistant regional director, and Donald A. Faired, local representative, both of SMA, and individual county welfare administrators and county commissioners.

Direct distribution of foods through commodity depots and from trucks is discontinued when the stamp plan is actually put in operation. Instead public assistance families use stamps to purchase foods of their own selection as to brand, quality and price at their favorite markets.

To Form Committees
Local county committees, representative of all branches of the food industry, will be formed to act through the operation of the stamp plan in each county with the cooperation of the plan.

The primary purpose of the food stamp plan is to assist farmers to dispose profitably of their over-abundant crops. Of the 18 foods on the present surplus list the majority are produced in abundance by Oregon farmers. The plan not only aids the farmers, but an addition makes two other distinct contributions to public welfare. It provides more food and better balanced diets for under-consuming public assistance families which directly improves the public health and benefits the future of our people.

Studies reveal the average public assistance family now spends five to eight cents per person per meal.

The second value is the increased volume of surplus foods which move through regular trade channels under the stamp plan. This helps business generally and by increasing such activity eventually leads to increased re-employment in our cities.

Out of a total population recently estimated at 255,832 in the nine counties there are about 3,677 households representing 14,325 persons eligible to receive some form of public assistance. These figures include WPA, old age assistance, aid to dependent children, aid to the blind, general assistance and farm security administration cases.

Participation is entirely voluntary. However, all persons certified by the county welfare departments as eligible to purchase food stamps may do so.

There are two types of stamps, both issued in denominations of twenty-five cents each and combined in books similar to postage stamp books. The orange-colored food stamps are good for the purchase of any and all foods for human consumption normally bought at a retail food store, exceptions being beer, wine, liquor, tobacco or foods consumed on the premises. The blue-colored free food stamps are good only for the purchase of foods which have been designated as surplus by the secretary of agriculture.

The participant is required to purchase a minimum amount of orange colored stamps depending on the size of family and income. For each one dollar spent for orange-colored stamps the participant receives free fifty cents in blue stamps. His food purchasing power is increased on an ad valorem basis as is used to buy surplus food.

The food stamps are issued in books with values from $2 to $10 of orange stamps. Included in each book, and within the same cover, will be half again as many free blue surplus food stamps. The head of the family or his authorized representative may purchase by mail books for his whole family.

The surplus foods currently designated by Secretary Wickard are—butter and eggs; rice, corn meal, hominy grits, wheat flour and whole wheat (graham) flour; dry edible beans, dried prunes and raisins, fresh oranges, pears, grapefruit and apples, fresh cabbage, Irish potatoes and onions (except green onions), pork lard and pork, which shall include all cuts, fresh, chilled or frozen, pickled, salted, cured, or smoked, but not cooked or packed in metal or glass containers. The surplus food list changes from time to time in accordance with crop surplus, with advance notice and wide publicity given any such changes.

Local arrangements have been made for redemption of food order stamps after they have been received by retail food merchants in the nine counties.

Families receiving assistance, as well as retail food merchants, will be completely informed as to the details of the food stamp plan well in advance of its actual operation, the latter part of December.

Gay Comedy Stars

Co-starred in what has been hailed as the greatest comedy since "The Awful Truth," Loretta Young and Melvyn Douglas are seen in "He Stayed for Breakfast" showing at the Hill theatre six days starting Thursday.

Conservative Agency Seen

(By John W. Kelley)
President Roosevelt was patient for a long time, but immediately after election he acted to reform the board. This was accomplished by appointing Dr. Henry A. Mills in place of J. Warren Madden. Dr. Mills is nationally known as a labor conciliator. With Dr. Leiteson, member of the board and also famed as a labor conciliator, NLRB has now two seasoned, well-balanced members with years of experience. Next step will be a house-cleaning of the employees of radical type. President Roosevelt believes he has now cured a trouble spot.

The national grange is pleased with the board changes, but insists that amendments to the Wagner act recommended by the grange and AFL be enacted. These amendments have been bottled in a senate committee for months by Senator Thomas of Colorado and Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin.

Paul J. Taver, administrator of Bonneville and Grand Coulee power, is in the national capital asking for more money to construct more transmission lines. His program calls for extending lines into the Blue mountains, into central Oregon, and on the coast in Oregon and spreading out into remote sections of Washington.

Only stand of Port Orford cedar in the world may be saved by the government. For years Japan has bought the cedar logs, sent shiploads to Japan, and the supply of trees gradually diminished. These trees are stubborn about reforestation, although the forest service is conducting experiments with indications of success. There is a probability that the last stand of these cedars may be declared a national monument and thereby preserved for future generations. Protest, if any, will come from county officials who do not want day

Lucille Inlay of the White Shoppe, Hillsboro, who advertised for a "Good home on farm for Australian Shepherd dog" was contacted by a satisfactory response before she ever saw her ad in print. Again—our Argus classified.

Mrs. Henry Smith, 621 South Third avenue, Hillsboro, advertised fruit jars for sale. The jars were exchanged for cash on the same day the paper came out.

Walter Larsen of Albany was an overnight guest of his mother, Mrs. A. Naderer, and sister, Mrs. Amos Watkins, last week, en route to Portland on a business trip.

Leave Motor Cool
An extremely hot motor should be allowed to cool for at least fifteen minutes before adding water to the radiator if the supply has become low, according to the emergency road service of the Oregon State Motor association. The sudden change in temperature caused by cold water may crack the motor block or cylinder head.

Recent Resident Of Hillsboro Dies

Edward Becke, 76, son of Oregon pioneers and resident of Hillsboro for the past four years, died Monday. Funeral services were held Wednesday, November 21, at 2 p. m. in Aurora with interment in the community cemetery there.

Surviving are one daughter, Mrs. Nunda Kiser, Hillsboro, one son, Ernest, Aurora; one brother, Henry, Oregon City; three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Edward Becke was born in Adair county, Mo., on June 21, 1864.

He crossed the plains with his parents by ox-team when he was a small child. Prior to taking up residence with his daughter here, he had lived in Aurora and Portland.

Furniture Shop Here Expands Line

Expanding an "infant industry" started in this city about a year ago, the E. G. Paine furniture and upholstery plant on East Jackson street announced this week that they have started manufacturing a new folding type of daveno bed. Nothing like it has ever been turned out in any Hillsboro shop, according to E. G. Paine, proprietor.

Low Use Of Oil
When an automobile engine uses an abnormally low amount of oil the fact should be regarded with suspicion rather than pride, suggest the emergency road service of the Oregon State Motor association. Excessive dilution of oil in the crankcase by fuel leaking past the pistons may be taking place.

Motorsists have been known to return from long trips with more "oil" than when they started out, although they had not added to the supply. The mystery was explained by the discovery that dilution by gasoline had actually raised the crankcase level.

Naturally, oil thus diluted suffers great loss of lubricating efficiency and threatens serious damage to the motor.

Gets Building Contract

Contract for construction of a new telephone building at Beaverton has been awarded to Allen Moore of Aloha. It was reported here this week. The building is to be 29 by 39 feet in size of brick construction.

1941 Superphosphate Arrangements Made

Approximately 10,000 tons of 20 per cent superphosphate will be available for Oregon participants in the AAA program during 1941, as a result of arrangements completed by the state AAA office at Corvallis with national officials of the program.

These conservation materials will be available for distribution on much the same basis as has been in force this year. Co-operators may obtain the phosphate and have the cost deducted from their benefit earnings at the end of the season. Superphosphate is one of a number of conservation materials distributed as an aid to the establishment and production of legumes, grasses and other soil conserving crops.
