Excerpt from Lecture on Christian Science

by Gavin W. Allan, C. S. D. of Toronto, Ontario

Peace is a subject in which everyone is interested, but to many persons peace is merely a cessation of hostilities between nations, an absence of war. So states a certain W. Allan, a member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. Mr. Allan declared that peace may have a more intimate significance, that peace, like charity, begins at home. He pointed out that Hastings' Bible Dictionary says that the word "peace," as used in the New Testament, refers in nearly every instance to "heart-peace." This is what Jesus meant, he declared, when he said, "Peace I leave unto you, but my peace I give unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." Such a peace is a human need today, he held, and the Principle by which any human problem can be solved has been revealed through Christian Science. A better understanding of God is gained through the study of the Bible and the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, he said, and the omnipotence and omnipresence of God, understood, is the remedy for every human discord. He assured his listeners that Christian Science offers relief, healing, and peace.

Health, happiness, and peace are normal conditions for man, Mr. Allan affirmed, and because this is true, they can be brought into the experience of everyone. He pointed out that sometimes difficult experiences, illness, or an inharmonious environment, or other distressing situations, have been attributed to the will of God. In this age, he declared, Mary Baker Eddy has revealed God's will clearly. He reviewed briefly the experience of Mrs. Eddy, who, in a critical condition, after an injury, turned to the Bible to study the healings of Jesus, and was healed. When the truth about God and His will dawned upon Mrs. Eddy he related, it revealed the infinite goodness and love of God and dispelled any false belief that God was the producer of sickness, or that it was any part of His plan. It revealed also, Mr. Allan pointed out, that evil is not of God, and is therefore undesirable, unreal.

According to the lecturer, God's will concerning man is not something terrible from which we should shrink, but something glorious toward which we should aspire. To one who is equipped with an understanding of God and man as revealed to the world today through Christian Science, "They will be done" becomes no longer a sigh of resignation, but a challenge to anything and everything which would attempt to preclude its realization.

Religion, Mr. Allan pointed out, is not confined to the family, the community, or even the nation. The concern of religion, he held, is not with nationalism, it is with humanity; it goes beyond race, creed, or boundaries; its domain is the world of humanity's needs.

In our relationship with each other today, he went on to say, there is a need for vision—vision of what is eternally true. That alone he said, can save us from belief in the discordant and untrue. He quoted that statement from Proverbs that where there is no vision, the people perish, and defined "to perish" as "to break up," "to go to pieces." The only thing that really unites people, he made clear, is an understanding of God, and the closer the individual gets to God, the closer individuals get to each other. In human relations, he explained, strange as it may seem, the way to peace is frequently by warfare, true warfare, warfare with evil, with self.

When Jesus said, "A man's foes shall be of his own household," he meant that his foes shall be found in his own mentality. Mr. Allan explained that is, his enemies are wrong thoughts, false beliefs, evil suggestions, and because his enemy is not a person, but evil itself, the only place he can handle it successfully is where it appears to prevent itself—in his own thinking.

Mr. Allan pointed out that human beings have been educated to believe that good and evil are personal, but that Christian Science shows that the good qualities we see in our friends do not originate in them, but are reflected by them; these qualities come from the source of all good. Likewise, he went on to explain, evil qualities which seem to be manifested by some are not created by them. Such persons are simply allowing themselves to be temporarily controlled by what he called "the carnal mind."

When we awaken to see the impersonal nature of good and evil, he held, we shall recognize the futility of fighting each other in order to destroy an impersonal evil. According to Mr. Allan, the Christian Scientist deals with evil as something God did not make, hence it is neither real nor true. He pointed out that the mission of Jesus was not to support the claim of evil's reality, but to deny it. Jesus' statement that he "came not to send peace, but a sword," shows the conflict between materiality and spirituality, which everyone must face, Mr. Allan declared, and held that Jesus' teachings are revolutionary, because they demand a complete transformation of our mental outlook.

Mr. Allan assured his listeners that world affairs are but an expression of humanity's thoughts, that peace between nations means vastly more than a cessation of hostilities, a reduction or even a complete absence of armament. No system of government can be any better than the people who devise and enforce it, he declared, and went on to explain that as men grow in their understanding of true government, that understanding will be reflected in their government of themselves, their communities, and their nations.

In conclusion, the lecturer told his listeners that Christianity, as it is revealed through Christian Science, is today uniting the peoples of the earth as no other system has ever done, that it is revealing to people of every nation the truth about God and man, and is giving them a common understanding of how to solve the various problems which may arise, whether such problems are personal, social, or national. When the nations of the world envision and accept the brotherhood of man under the government of God, he stated, we shall have peace.

Mr. Allan, who spoke under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Hillsboro, quoted from the Bible and the writings of Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, in support of the statements he made.
