

J. M. Brown Elected Association Head

John M. Brown, custodian of the historical museum, was elected president of the Pioneer and Native Sons and Daughters association at the annual meeting and picnic Sunday at Shute park. Other officers elected were Mrs. Lester Mooberry, native daughter who has served as secretary of the association for the past four years, vice-president, and Miss Mabel Hanson, secretary-treasurer. The officers are all descendants of men who fought in the Revolutionary war, it was announced by Mrs. J. C. Hare of Portland.

Coming from many sections of the county, Portland and Salem, members gathered under the trees for a picnic dinner preceding the afternoon meeting. E. Wilkes, president, presided at the program, which opened with singing of "America," with Mrs. Wilkes at the piano; salute and pledge to the flag; and invocation by R. A. Carlile.

In the absence of Mayor Rogers, Acting Mayor E. A. Griffith made the address of welcome, and gave some interesting data on the early days of Hillsboro. He said that David Hill, for whom the city is named, came to Oregon in 1841 and in 1847 squatted on a claim in what is now known as Washington county. He sold 40 acres south of Main street to Tuality county (Washington) where Hillsboro now stands for $200. North of Main street was a part of the donation claim of Isaiah Kelsey, who came here in 1841. Between first and second on Main street on the Hill property was a log cabin used as a court house. Mr. Kelsey donated four acres of land on which the present court house stands. (Mr. Kelsey was an uncle by marriage of the president, Mr. Wilkes). In 1852 the county built a cedar court house.

Another interesting thing he told was that in 1853, William Brown (father of John M. Brown and pioneer of '52) built a log jail for $1100, between Second and Third and Washington and Baseline, and in 1858 he built a gallows on which to hang a man and a coffin to bury him in for $50. R. E. Wiley, father of William Wiley, was sheriff at that time, and served papers on Captain Ulysses S. Grant, who later became president of the United States. In 1872 a brick court house was built, and in 1887 the Sequoias (Redwoods) were planted when Rodolph Crandall was county judge.

Mr. Griffith stressed the work John Brown was doing at the historical museum in the library, and expressed the hope that a budget would be allowed for the continued care of pioneer relics and history.

Mrs. Edythe Tozier Weatherred, who was here for the first time since having a serious illness several years ago, made the response to the address of welcome, and pledged her loyalty to Washington county pioneers and native sons and daughters.

R. A. Carlile sang several solos, and Miss Martha James gave a reading entitled "Aunt Jane's Quilts." J. Nielsen Barry of Portland gave the main address, and stressed the importance of preserving all pioneer relics and historical data, saying that it would be more valuable in years to come. He said "we speak of history when we are history ourselves," and paid a high tribute to L. E. Wilkes, who has just completed a history of his family and early day events. He also told of investigating some surveys in the northwest, and upon being told that the government had made some corrections in these surveys, sent to Washington, D. C., for the blue prints. "I was amazed," he said, "when I received these corrected blue prints to find that they were the work of our Mr. Wilkes." Mr. Barry had a history of the ten Indian tribes formerly in this territory, which he presented to John Brown for the historical collection.

Seated on the speakers' platform were Mrs. Martha Collins, who is 82; Mrs. Flora Pio. Mrs. Edythe Tozier Weatherred, and Mrs. Charles M. Johnson, all county pioneers. Mrs. Collins told of her early life here, and of her efforts in starting the first rural free mail delivery, and other civic activities. The Collins home was just north of Hillsboro on the place now owned by John Hare and family.

Mrs. C. P. Blanchard, formerly of Leisville, but now of Portland, gave a short talk and said that she had taught school in the Leisville district, Columbia Academy, North Plains, Centerville and other places in the county, and that her father, William Prickett, assisted in planting the trees in the court yard. Mr. Blanchard and Charles Staley of Forest Grove, also made brief talks.

Mrs. Helen Deichman and her sisters, Misses Lena and Elvira Victor of Portland, native daughters of the county with their birthplace near West Union, were present and were introduced.

All men and women over 70 years of age were presented with bouquets and corsages by the Hillsboro Garden club of which Oregon has one registered motor vehicle for every 2.7 persons residing in the state, it was disclosed today by Earl Snell, secretary of state, who announced a registration of 394,284 vehicles at the end of May.

This registration is an increase of 8.8 per cent. above the registration for the same period last year. Registration fees totaled $2,873,379 compared to a total of $2,590,385 for the corresponding period last year. There were 323,911 private passenger vehicles registered in Oregon at the end of May, compared to 298,139 at the same time last year. Registration of motor vehicles is expected to exceed the 400,000 mark in Oregon this year, Snell said. The 1940 registration was just 187 vehicles short of 400,000 and at the rate of increase shown to date, it is expected this mark will be passed before the year is over.

Don't Take Flares, Warning States

Warning flares, placed on the highway to mark the presence of a stalled motor vehicle, are highly important to the safety of other motorists and should never be disturbed by unauthorized persons, according to a statement from the office of the Traffic Safety Division.

The statement was released following reports of the theft of several of these torch flares, placed on the highway in front of and to the rear of stalled vehicles.

"Without the warning conveyed by these flares, drivers may crash into such stalled vehicles, causing death or serious injury," the safety division's statement said. "The importance of these flares as a warning to others should be kept in mind and under no circumstances should they be disturbed by unauthorized persons."

THE NINTH HOUR

Any man who is willing to work eight hours a day can make a living. But he must work nine to make a profit.

Men of ordinary brains, who are satisfied to stand still, can always "get by" if they work the so-called "full day." But men of a higher type must pay a higher price for the satisfaction of large success. The ninth and tenth and eleventh hour are the golden hours or "profit-hours" that are spent, not in idleness and pernicious grousing, but in work and study and self-equipment for the better opportunity that is sure to come.

To make your life increasingly effective and happy, seize that ninth hour and use it for progress. —Ex.

Merchant Marine Enrollees Sought By Coast Guard

To meet the pressing and increasing need for trained seamen in the American merchant marine, the maritime service is expanding its training program and offers to young men of good character, who are eligible, a special course of training with pay to fit them for a career at sea. To be eligible an applicant must be an American citizen between 18 and 23 years of age. He must be able to pass a rigid physical examination, produce proof of citizenship, and if under 21 years, have the written consent of his parents.

Enrollment in the maritime service is for seven months as apprentice seamen at $21 per month with the necessary transportation, clothing and living accommodations provided by the government.

Enrollees will not be in a military status, but a high standard

1,488,837; Indiana, 1,411,459; and Colorado, 1,303,162.

To the layman not familiar with the subject, some of the figures are surprising. For instance, Texas, pre-eminent as the state that raises the most cotton, beef, cattle, sheep and mules, also is shown as quite a big wheat producer.

The same is true of Montana, commonly looked upon as a copper and other mineral producing state, and as a prime fur producer. Nevertheless, it ranks among states whose acreage is over 3,000,000. Its average wheat crop for the years 1927-1936 was 42 million bushels and in 1938 it produced 72 million bushels.
